Congress uneasy over troop buildup

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress expressed concern Friday that President Bush's deployment of more than 200,000 additional troops in the Persian Gulf signifies a major change of strategy that could lead to war with Iraq.

With Bush himself and his top aides stressing that the United States may resort to a military attack if the Iraqis refuse to withdraw from Kuwait, members of Congress saw the military build-up as a sign the administration is losing patience with economic sanctions and is now preparing for offensive action.

So many Democratic members of Congress have begun raising questions about Bush's policy that House Speaker Thomas S. Foley has planned a meeting in Washington next week to discuss the matter. He plans to return to the Capitol today from his home in Washington state.

Foley said a date has not been set for the meeting, but it presumably will be held before Wednesday when Bush is to confer with congressional leaders on the Persian Gulf situation.

"I think we're going to continue seeing more questions raised about this matter," Foley said.

Democratic congressional leaders, who left Washington last week worried that war might erupt while Congress is in recess, made it clear that the new deployment has increased their fears. They urged Bush to consult more with Congress and to spell out his Persian Gulf policy more extensively to the American people.

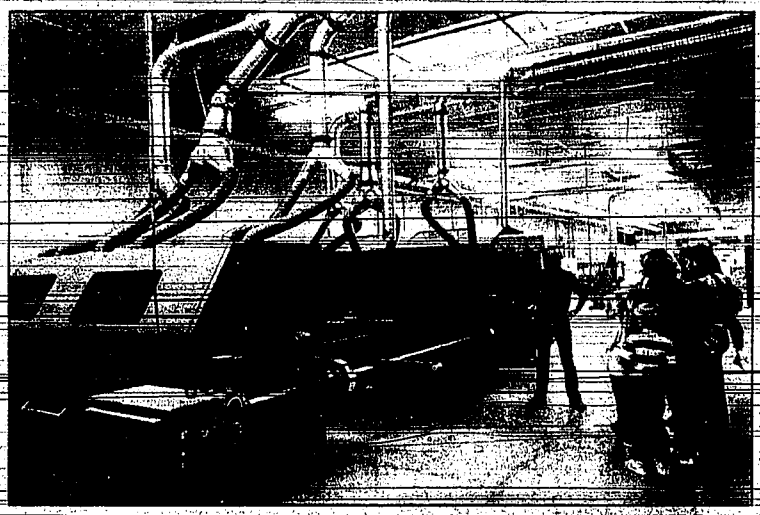

Foley, though not declaring himself opposed to Bush's course, stressed that his support for the president's decision in August to send troops to the gulf "has been based on defensive operations — and it still is."

Rep. William Broomfield, ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, called the sending of a much larger force "a major change" in policy and said Bush should have consulted with lawmakers more to assure he had full congressional backing.

"The whole question is one of putting more pressure on (Iraqi dictator) Saddam Hussein," Broomfield said. "But if you

Explosion cuts lights in Jackpot

By N.S. Nokkentved
Times-News writer

JACKPOT – An explosion blew out the lights Thursday night.

"The lights went out – and then – oh – it must have been a good half minute later – there was a bang," said Carl Hayden, spokesman for Cactus Pete's.

According to Idaho Power Co., a circuit breaker in the Border Substation exploded about 9:30 p.m., damaging the transformer that supplies power to Jackpot. The substation is located a little north of Jackpot, and the sound of an explosion would take several seconds to reach town.

"It blew parts all over the place," said Steve Cooper, manager of Idaho Power's Southern Region. The explosion flung pieces of metal as far as 50 yards away, he said.

The explosion "blew a big crater" about 15 to 20 feet across and about three feet deep, said Jay Snyder, the Elko County commissioners' Jackpot liaison.

Witnesses described a big orange glow from the explosion that was similar to a low-voltage lighting strike, he said.

When the power went off, the town's well pumps stopped, and except for one casino the town went dark.

Cactus Pete's operated overnight on its two recently-installed emergency generators.

The town used water from its 1.4 million-gallon gravity storage reservoir. But 600,000 to 700,000 gallons of that is normally kept in reserve for fires.

Crews worked through the night to restore power, and Friday installed a portable transformer brought in from Boise until permanent repairs can be completed.

Cooper did not know the cause of the explosion, but rumors of sabotage circulated around the substation just north of Jackpot, he said.

"We have not seen anything that would confirm that," Cooper said. But the utility is calling in an investigative team to look into that possibility, he said.

Most homes in Jackpot are electrically heated. Only a few have wood stoves or fireplaces.

"Fortunately it was a warm night," Cooper said.

Power was restored by about 4 p.m.

Charge reduced in Wendell shooting

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

GOODING — A Wendell teen-ager charged with second-degree murder after the Halloween shotgun slaying of his mother's boyfriend agreed Friday to plead guilty to a lesser charge of voluntary manslaughter.

Wil A. Beaver, 19, remained in the Gooding County Jail Friday evening in lieu of $5,000 bond, reduced from $25,000.

Beaver waived his preliminary hearing and is scheduled to appear in 5th District Court on Nov. 19 to enter his plea. A second charge of felony use of a firearm also was dismissed.

The decision to accept the plea bargain was "a tough call," Prosecutor Lynn Nelson said after Friday's brief court appearance before 5th District Magistrate Thomas Cushman.

The atmosphere outside the courtroom was one of relief, as family members quietly discussed ways to raise bail money.

"The incident occurred as a result of domestic violence," Nelson said. The difference between the voluntary manslaughter and second-degree murder charges is whether Beaver acted in the "heat of passion" or had a predetermined "intent to kill," he said.

Voluntary manslaughter carries a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison and/or a $15,000 fine.

The victim, 40-year-old William Davis, was shot in the face and chest with a 12-gauge shotgun Oct. 31. After the shooting, Beaver called police to the Wendell home he shares with his mother and surrendered quietly.

Clark County cancer rates up, study says

The Associated Press

IDAHO FALLS — Chuck Walker says he is dying of a rare form of leukemia. Two medical experts have told him he got the cancer from radiation.

There is only one place I could have gotten this from, and that's that way," said Walker, 39, pointing in the direction of the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Walker, who grew up near Monteview, said he does not trust the U.S. Department of Energy and is frustrated with the state's INEL oversight panel, an independent group studying the health effects of the site.

"I sure hope they can come in with something better than they came in with tonight," Walker said Thursday. "I think we've wasted a lot of time and a lot of money."

The source of Walker's frustration is a new, inconclusive study of cancer rates in Clark County, north of the farm where Walker grew up. State officials released it Thursday night at a meeting in Idaho Falls.

From 1978 to 1987, 39 cancer cases were reported in Clark County, which has a population of about 800. Statistically, researchers would expect about 25 cases in

King lax with his footnotes

The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — A historian hired to compile Martin Luther King Jr.'s papers said Friday that the slain civil rights leader's academic writings contain plagiarized passages, which he attributed to "simple carelessness."

Stanford University history professor Clayborne Carson and other King supporters held that the apparent graduate school plagiarism was a small blot on a great man's record.

"King's historical importance was based not on his work as a student, but on his achievements as a leader of a social movement that changed the course of American history," said Carson, whose King family-supported project revealed the copied work. "That can't be taken away."

Boston University — where King did his doctoral dissertation — set up a committee of four scholars to review King's 343-page effort, "A Comparison of the Conceptions of God in the Thinking of Paul Tillich and Henry Nelson Weiman," which he wrote in 1955.

Still, school officials said: "The stature of Martin Luther King, Jr., as the pre-eminent leader of America's civil rights movement, does not depend upon the truth or falsity of the charges now being mised. ... His great and lasting contributions to American society and to humanity rest upon the life he made after he left the university."

Wholesale index up

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Fear of war in the Persian Gulf jolted oil prices for the third straight month in October, but slowing economic growth held wholesale price inflation for non-food and non-energy items to zero.

The Labor Department said Friday that its Producer Price Index for finished goods, one step short of retail, jumped a seasonally adjusted 1.1 percent last month.

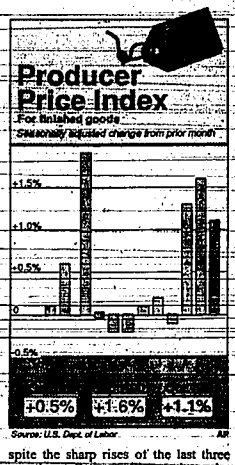

That followed increases of 1.6 percent in September and 1.3 percent in August, bringing the annual inflation rate for the year so far to levels not seen in nine years.

Wholesale price inflation, on an annual basis, was 7 percent for the first 10 months of 1990, the highest since a 7.1 percent rise in 1981.

Even though the October number was higher than the predicted 0.7 percent rise, stock and bond markets rallied immediately after the report because prices outside the volatile food and energy sectors were unchanged. This so-called "core" inflation rate is considered a better indicator of long-term inflationary trends.

Traders took the absence of core inflation as a sign the Federal Reserve Board likely would stimulate the economy with lower interest rates after its policymakers meet Tuesday.

Economists are optimistic that despite the sharp rises of the last three months, inflation will remain under control unless war in the Middle East destroys Saudi Arabia's oil produc-

Weather summary

Mild in the south, rain in the north.

That was Idaho's weather on Friday. Under generally clear skies, the Magic Valley and all of southern Idaho basked in mild temperatures and light breezes which made for a pleasant autumn day.

Temperatures ranged from the 50s to the low 70s across Idaho after early morning lows mostly in the 30s.

Rainfall amounts ranged from traces at Malta and Moscow to .03 inch at Malad, .24 at Coeur d'Alene and up to 1.4 inch at Mullan.

The warmest temperature in the state Friday was 71 degrees at Hagerman. Ketchum reported the coldest at 16 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 94 degrees at Monrovia, Calif. The lowest was 5 at Alamosa, Colo.

Boisean Lojek asks for recount

BOISE — Boise lawyer Donald Lojek, who lost his bid for the Idaho Senate by less than 100 votes in the final legislative race decided in the general election, has asked for a recount.

Lojek on Friday filed papers with the attorney general's office asking for a recount of 17 of the 19 precincts in Legislative District 17. The Ada County sheriff's office immediately impounded ballots from the precincts involved pending the recounts.

The recount could have an enormous impact on the Senate, which wound up in a 21-21 tie after two Boise Democrats defeated incumbent GOP state senators in two of the final legislative contests to be decided.

Republican Rep. Ed Osborne won the election in final but unofficial returns by 94 votes, 4,362 to 4,268. Sen. Rachel Gilbert, R-Boise, surrendered the seat in an unsuccessful bid for the GOP governor nomination.

The recount won't come soon. Deputy Attorney General Frank Walker said the recount request can't be acted upon until the state Board of Canvassers meets to officially certify election results.

That's not scheduled until Nov. 21 or whenever all 44 county clerks get their official election reports in to the secretary of state's office in Boise.

Koreans riot against nuclear dump

SEOUL, South Korea — President Roh Tae-woo fired a Cabinet minister and a provincial police chief on Friday after thousands of villagers rioted to protest government plans to build a nuclear waste dump.

It was the nation's most violent anti-nuclear protest — with about 22 people reported injured — and officials said plans would be scuttled for a waste disposal facility on scenic Aanyon Island, 90 miles southwest of Seoul.

By late Friday, about 3,000 riot police had fanned out to restore order among the 50,000 residents.

Panel approves memorial design

WASHINGTON — A federal commission has approved a controversial, revised design for the Korean War veterans' memorial, and ground breaking is scheduled for Veterans Day, 1991, a veterans' panel said Friday.

Bill Russell, spokesman for the Korean War Veterans Memorial Advisory Board, said organizers hoped construction could begin next year despite complaints by the original architects that their design has been altered.

He said the National Capital Memorial Commission approved the design, including the revisions, during a hearing Thursday. The commission is part of the Interior Department.

The board, created by Congress to oversee the project, must still raise an additional $6 million through the sale of commemorative silver dollars, Russell said. The final memorial price tag is estimated at $14.9 million.

American dies in desert mishap

IN EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA — A U.S. Army soldier taking part in Operation Desert Shield has been found dead in a shower, and a preliminary investigation found no evidence of foul play, military officials said Friday.

The soldierwas identified as Sgt. James Witcher, assigned to the 118th Ordnance Detachment of the 11th Air Defense Artillery Brigade, was found dead Thursday. His name was withheld pending notification of next of kin, the Army said in a statement.

Orr concedes defeat in Nebraska

OMAHA, Neb. — Republican Gov. Kay Orr on Friday conceded the governor's race to Democrat Ben Nelson, pledging she would work with him.

"The counting of the absentee and disabled ballots has not significantly changed the balance of total votes in the gubernatorial election. Therefore, I am officially conceding the election to Mr. Nelson," Mrs. Orr said in a statement.

Nelson defeated Mrs. Orr, the nation's first Republican woman elected governor, in Tuesday's election by 4,658 votes in unofficial returns, not including absentee ballots.

want the broadest support, Congress has got to be in on the takeoff as well as the landing."

Broomfield said Bush's failure to keep Congress better informed could undermine his gulf policy and pointed out that he and Committee Chairman Dante Fascell, D-Fla., asked Bush in an Oct. 26 letter to consult with Congress on any additional deployment of forces or change in military mission.

Fascell said it is unlikely that Saddam Hussein can be "bluffed out" of Kuwait and "this means that we cannot keep increasing our forces in Operation Desert Shield unless we are ready, willing and able to use them in an offensive operation."

A congressional source said that when Foley met with Bush two weeks ago to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis, he emphasized that while Democrats backed his policy the president could not necessarily count of the party's support if the U.S. launches an attack on Iraq without clear provocation. In a telephone interview, Foley declined to confirm or deny that account.

Several Democratic members, speaking on condition they not be identified, explained that members of Congress who have questions about Bush's policy find themselves in an awkward position because to publicly challenge Bush's move might relieve some of the pressure on Saddam Hussein.

"Nobody wants to give comfort to Saddam Hussein," said one member, "but some members would like to see this policy more fully debated in public."

Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., the House floor leader, said, "Democrats have supported the President's policy and continue to do that, but what is needed is greater consultation with Congress and discussions with the American people so that if the policy or underlining strategy is changing, people will understand that."

Economy

tion facilities. The economy is simply too weak for most goods producers to pass on higher energy costs, they say.

In fact, the latest edition of a prominent survey of private economists said the nation likely will topple into a recession before the end of the year.

Blue Chip Economic Indicators of Sedona, Ariz., reported Friday that 44 of the 55 economists in its survey believe a downturn will start before the end of 1990. Another three said the slump would start in 1991.

In October, energy costs led prices higher, rising 8 percent compared with 13.8 percent in September and 9.5 percent the month before that.

Fuel oil prices rose 15 percent and were 67.5 percent higher than a year earlier. Natural gas costs, however, edged down 0.3 percent.

Gasoline prices increased 8 percent and were 50.2 percent higher than a year earlier.

Food prices, meanwhile, rose 0.9 percent, the biggest increase since unseasonably cold weather froze southern fruit and vegetable crops in January.

Egg costs were up 9.5 percent; pork, 8.2 percent, and beef and turkeys, 5.1 percent. Prices also rose for vegetables and pasta.

The increases were partly offset by declines in the prices of fresh fruit, rice, chickens, fish, dairy products, coffee and cooking oils.

In other categories, the price of passenger cars fell 2.7 percent after jumping 3.4 percent a month earlier. Other declines were recorded for men's and boys' clothing, floor coverings and household flatware.

King

Coretta Scott King didn't immediately comment, but Carson said King's widow "recognizes that any serious project like this is going to produce some negative information as well as positive facts."

Mrs. King founded the Martin Luther King Jr. Papers Project in 1984 to gather his writings from around the country and produce a collection. Carson was picked to direct the project, which he said is 16 months behind schedule after devoting the past three years to substantiating the plagiarism.

King, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964, was assassinated at age 39 on April 4, 1968, in Memphis, Tenn.

The questions about King's academic work surfaced in late 1987 when evidence was discovered by a Stanford graduate student working for the King Papers Project.

The Wall Street Journal reported Friday that the discovery was kept secret for three years, as it stirred much debate and anguish. Several students working on the project wondered why the finding should be investigated, some resigned, and at least one broke down in tears when she found out.

In some parts of the dissertation, King lifted passages nearly verbatim from other texts without using any quotation marks or footnotes.

It became apparent that throughout his seven years of graduate school, King's essays often borrowed from other sources without citing them as required by academic policy, Carson said.

High-winds pummel Rocky Mountain states, Northwest

The Associated Press

Winds whipped through the Pacific Northwest on Friday while thunderstorms rumbled through the Southeast.

High-wind warnings were posted for the eastern slopes and the upper Yellowstone Valley of Montana, southeast Wyoming and eastern Washington state.

Winds reached 46 mph Friday morning at Othello, Wash., 70 mph at Rawlins, Wyo., and 78 mph between Cheyenne and Laramie, Wyo.

Winds damaged trees and caused power outages near Spokane, Wash.

Strong, gusty winds developed and advisories for blowing snow were posted over the mountains in northern Colorado.

Advisories also were posted for the northern mountain passes of Colorado because of the gusty winds, snow-packed roads and poor visibility in the blowing and drifting snow.

A flood warning was posted for parts of northwest Washington state, where more than four inches of rain fell across the area overnight. Several more inches of rain were expected.

Flood watches were posted for the foothills and Piedmont of South Carolina, and for the northeast Georgia mountains.

Showers and thunderstorms extended over the Florida panhandle into southern Alabama, as well as parts of Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, the Carolinas, Virginia and West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Lower Michigan.

Rain also fell across northwest Montana, the Idaho panhandle, the coast of Washington state, and north-central California.

Snow fell in northern Lower Michigan and Upper Michigan. Freezing rain was scattered in northeast Montana.

Freezing rain produced a layer of ice near Glasgow, Mont., and advisories were posted for slippery roads.

The nation's low Friday morning was 5 degrees at Alamosa, Colo.

Credit bank head dies of aneurysm

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Ronald Feryn, chairman of the board of directors of the Farm Credit Bank of Spokane, is dead of a brain aneurysm at age 44.

Feryn died Wednesday at Holy Family Hospital.

A funeral Mass is scheduled for Monday at St. Thomas More Catholic Church with burial at Holy Cross Cemetery.

Feryn was named to the board of the Farm Credit Bank of Spokane in 1987, serving as chairman in 1989 and 1990.

Survivors include his wife, Marie, his mother, Beatrice, and three children.

Cancer

the county over that period.

Rates for breast, colon and lung cancer, which can be linked to cancer, also were higher than expected, according to the study. But Clark County's small population base makes it impossible to draw any hard conclusions, said the state Department of Health and Welfare's Division of Health.

Other factors might be responsible for the cancer cases. Three people suffering from lung cancer said they smoked at least a pack of cigarettes a day for 25 years or more. Five patients with breast and colon cancer said their families had a history of cancer.

State officials are quick to say that their study has limitations. But they say Clark County, with its small population and its proximity to the INEL, was a good place to start studying health effects.

"We thought that was a reasonable place to try to do something," said Fritz Dixon, state epidemiologist.

Cancer and uncertainty both are prevalent in Clark County. Since no one knows for sure what has caused the county's high cancer rate, residents say the INEL is a natural target of suspicion.

"There have been an awful lot of deaths in Clark County," Verla Webster of Dubois said Friday.

Mrs. Webster, 77, was diagnosed as having colon cancer two years ago. Her husband died of skin cancer 10 years ago. Neither had any family history of cancer.

Mrs. Webster's brother, Albert Laird of Dubois, lost two adult sons to cancer within a year. But Laird is reluctant to draw any conclusions about an INEL connection.

"They were different cancers entirely. We have no theories about how it started," the 76-year Clark County commissioner said Friday. "If you don't know, you shouldn't condemn anybody, I guess."

But there is no question in Walker's mind.

According to several reports, Davis repeatedly beat Beaver's mother, Peggi Lund. Lund's mother, Serene Dettinger, told reporters earlier that one-of-those beatings triggered the shooting.

"If you remove the violent incident that happened that night, I don't think we would ever have any problem with this kid," Nelson said.

If he posts bond and is released, Beaver will not be allowed to leave the state and must remain in constant contact with his attorney, Gooding County Public Defender Seven Swenson.

"I don't think he's a flight risk," Nelson said.

The 13,000-pound 'Bearfoot' gets revenge on a row of Volvos during a stunt Friday.

Unlike commercials, 'monster truck' stomps row of Volvos

PHILADELPHIA (AP) – Hardly a fair contest, maybe, but hot rod enthusiasts cheered a measure of revenge Friday for a 13,000-pound "monster truck" that squashed a row of Volvos.

Some in the crowd figured the little guy deserved getting bashed this time, the response of the U.S. Hot Rod Association to a Volvo television commercial that has been pulled from the air.

"I loved it. It was great. They had it coming to them," said Billie Burns, who brought three children ages 4, 2 and 8 months from nearby Folcroft to the exhibition in the parking lot of the Spectrum sports arena. The trucks had arrived for a weekend competition at the Spectrum.

She was not impressed with the way the Volvos held up briefly before succumbing to "Bearfoot" and its 1,000-pound tires.

"They were stomped," she said with a grin.

In Pittsburgh, however, another monster truck had big trouble with a Volvo. "Big Boss" and its 800-pound tires got stuck on a 1975 green Volvo in the parking lot of Civic Arena.

Burns, like some other spectators, said they came to see Volvo's comeuppance for an ad in which a Volvo appeared to be the only car left relatively intact in a line of autos run over by Bearfoot.

Texas' attorney general challenged the ad and the company pulled it this week, saying that unknown to Volvo, the Volvo in the line of cars had been reinforced.

Friday, Bearfoot and two other monster trucks, Predator and Black Stallion, took turns getting their own licks in as TV crews and a small crowd watched.

"We don't have a knock against Volvo," Hot Rod Association spokesman Steve Greenberg said. "We're doing this in good-natured fun. It is tongue-in-cheek."

"There is a reputation to uphold here," he added, citing questions caused by the ad about the power of the monster trucks, which he said draw 4 million fans a year to events around the country.

The junked Volvos in Philadelphia were no match over the long haul. But the trucks needed a few swipes to get the job done. The roar of the trucks drowned the crowd's cheers with each pass.

The white-and-blue Predator crushed a line of five cars – a Pontiac, three Chevys and a Volvo in the middle. The roof of the Volvo wagon held up enough that it might have protected passengers.

Then Black Stallion took one run at a line of six Volvos, breaking them in for four runs by Bearfoot. One on the end gave the trucks particular trouble before giving way. Bearfoot finally finished it by coming at an angle to smash another that had roof supports still standing, coming to rest on the crushed car.

Bearfoot driver Todd Bineer said he was surprised by how well the Volvos held up. Usually, he said, a line of cars would be finished off in two or three runs.

Asked if Volvo had passed the test, he looked at the pile of six crushed cars with the metallic blue truck on top of it and said, "It doesn't look like it, does it?"

"We've run into Volvos that have stood up in a pile of cars as being tougher," said Blaeser, 23, of Chippewa Falls, Wis.

Volvo spokesman Robert Austin watched the car stomping on television from his office, and said while the Volvos "didn't come out unscathed," they appeared to hold up well compared with other cars.

Anti-drug heads seek image, logo

WASHINGTON (AP) – Leaders of the President's Drug Advisory Council said Friday that President Bush should speak on television twice a year to reinforce his commitment to the war on drugs.

They also urged the country's 500 richest businesses to pay for anti-drug booklets for each of the nation's 32 million grade-school children and said all professional sports team uniforms should carry anti-drug patches.

"There needs to be a national image, a national symbol, a national logo, that everyone can look at like the American flag," said Orange County Sheriff Brad Gates, founder of California's Drug Use is Life Abuse program.

The council's National Leadership Forum heard from the heads of three substance abuse programs in California, Florida and Washington singled out as national models.

"This is not a war on drugs. This is really a rebuilding effort – rebuilding our communities so we have safe places to live and work and go to school," said Paul Dziedzic, special assistant to Washington Gov. Booth Gardner.

Edward "Thad" Foote, president of the University of Miami and chairman of The Miami Coalition, said his group has determined that some old assumptions about drug abuse were wrong.

"We were perilously close to just throwing up our hands a few years ago," Foote said. "We found out this problem wasn't going to go away by building more jails or sending more ships to the Caribbean.

"And we finally figured out if you want to break the cycle of addiction for poor sick people, you've got to find them a job," he said.

President vetoes bill on 'orphan drugs'

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Bush on Friday vetoed a bill intended to block drug companies from reaping windfall profits through monopolistic marketing of drugs that treat rare diseases.

The bill applies to "orphan drugs" used against diseases that affect fewer than 200,000 people. It was designed to foster more competition by eliminating the 7-year exclusive marketing rights granted under current law to companies that develop such drugs.

"I have serious concerns about the effect that (the bill) would have upon the incentive of drug companies to develop orphan drugs," Bush said in a statement.

The White House contends that taking away the exclusivity benefit actually would decrease the willingness of firms to come up with orphan drugs because of the expense involved in the research and development.

The legislation Bush vetoed would have amended the 1983 Orphan Drug Act that established the 7-year marketing monopoly as an incentive for companies to develop drugs that don't promise as large a profit as drugs that are used against more widely prevalent diseases.

"I believe we must not endanger the success of this program, which is due in large measure to the existence of the market exclusivity provision in the Orphan Drug Act," Bush said. "Weakening the current 7-year period is the basis of the economic incentive to attract drug firms to invest in orphan drugs."

Drug for panic disorder wins FDA approval

WASHINGTON (AP) – The leading anti-anxiety drug has become the first medication approved for panic disorder, officials said Friday.

An estimated 3 million Americans – 1 percent to 2 percent of the population – will suffer from panic disorder in their lifetimes. For more than half of them, it will disrupt their social and working lives.

The illness is characterized by repeated panic attacks, in which a patient is struck by intense fear. By avoiding situations associated with the attacks, some sufferers become housebound or are unable to go outside alone.

Symptoms of the attacks can include chest pain, shortness of breath, dizziness, trembling and sweating, nausea and abdominal distress. The symptoms often mimic a heart attack, which can lead to an incorrect diagnosis, said officials of the Upjohn Co., which makes Xanax.

Judge extends ban on CNN

MIAMI (AP) – A federal judge Friday extended a ban against broadcast of taped conversations between Manuel Noriega and his attorneys, warning that the protections against prior restraint of the press are not absolute.

Panama's current President Guillermo Endara, meanwhile, said that if U.S. prosecutors falter, Panama is now ready to take its former dictator back for trial on charges of looting the nation's treasury.

The tapes are the latest cloud over the drug-trafficking case here. Cable News Network on Thursday broadcast parts of Noriega telephone conversations made from his federal prison cell.

U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler on Friday extended for 10 days his order banning CNN from using any portion of the tape that could compromise Noriega's attorney-client privilege.

"I cannot conceive that the law of prior restraint is so sacrosanct and so encompassing that there can be no fact situation which would justify enjoining publication of communications between attorney and client," Hoeveler wrote.

Small quake raises fears in Missouri

NEW MADRID, Mo. (AP) – A small tremor caused no damage or injuries but heightened concerns about a major earthquake that has been forecast for the area.

Thursday night's quake measured 3.6 on the Richter scale and was felt in at least three states – Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee.

The quake struck along the New Madrid Fault, which produces hundreds of tremors a year, but most are hardly felt.

Iben Browning, a New Mexico climatologist, has forecast a 50-50 chance for a major earthquake along the fault on or about Dec. 3.

Germans remember Nazi rampage, celebrate fall of Berlin Wall

AP Laserphoto

BERLIN (AP) – Germans mixed joy with sadness Friday in marking one year since the Berlin Wall opened and the anniversary of the night a Nazi rampage against Jews signaled the coming of the Holocaust and war.

"Berliners came together again," said the inscription on a monument – a four-foot-square section of the wall – unveiled at one of the border crossings where thousands of East Germans streamed across a year earlier in jubilation and bewilderment.

In East Berlin, about 3,000 members of the city's Jewish community attended a commemoration of the 1938 Crystal Night pogrom, named for the sound of breaking glass as Nazi thugs wrecked synagogues, Jewish homes and businesses.

The ceremony was the first held in East Berlin.

Heinz Galinski, leader of the Central Council of German Jews, said the significance of the wall's opening a year earlier "remains a half-truth if it conceals the earlier imprinted meaning of the date."

"And half-truths are not a good foundation for building a healthy future," he said.

Galinski said Germans have never acknowledged fully the events that started on Nov. 9, 1938. Six million Jews had died by the time World War II ended in 1945 and Germany lay in ruins.

West Berlin Mayor Walter Momper, unveiling the wall monument at Bornholmer Bridge, also referred to the memory of Crystal Night, but concentrated on the recent past and the future.

"For Germans, Nov. 9, 1989 was the happiest day in the postwar era. Those who witnessed it will never forget," said the Social Democrat, recalling the end to the wall.

Momper will share the mayoralty with his East Berlin counterpart, Tino Swierzina, until Dec. 2, when Germany holds elections for parliament and other offices. The two Germanys united Oct. 3.

Moper said the government of united Germany belongs in Berlin, not in Bonn, he said.

The Bundesrat, the upper house of Germany's parliament, met in Berlin on Friday for the first time in 31 years, joined by newly elected representatives from the five eastern states created when East Germany joined the West.

The rapid pace toward unification also thrust the nation into a host of new economic and social problems. Facing the lawmakers are questions such as rising unemployment in former East Germany and claims of property by Germans who fled to West Berlin before the wall was erected in 1962.

Momper thanked other East Bloc reformers for helping inspire East Germans and gave special thanks to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, who arrived in Bonn Friday to a hero's welcome.

Later Friday, Gorbachev and Chancellor Helmut Kohl signed a 20-year treaty of friendship and cooperation.

Wally Kape, a 68-year-old woman living in an apartment on the east side of the bridge where Momper spoke, said a friend had called her last Nov. 9 saying the wall had opened suddenly.

"I couldn't believe it. I looked out my window and saw thousands of people crossing the bridge, and they were still there at 5 in the morning."

The subject of who deserves credit for the spontaneous opening of the wall is still a point of debate.

Germany, U.S.S.R. renounce force

BONN, Germany (AP) – Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev signed an historic non-aggression treaty with united Germany on Friday and won praise from German leaders for his role in the peaceful fall of the Berlin Wall.

Gorbachev's first visit to united Germany coincided with the first anniversary of the opening of the wall and came just five weeks after East Germany, Moscow's longtime War-saw Pact ally, vanished.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and Gorbachev stressed the importance of the historic changes that have allowed closer ties between Bonn and Moscow as they signed the broad agreement that is to serve as the basis of future relations.

In the treaty, initialed in Moscow on Sept. 13, both nations pledge not to attack the other and to honor the borders of all European nations.

"We are closing the book on the painful past and clearing the way for a new beginning," Kohl said in a speech at the signing ceremony.

A short-lived alliance between Germany and the Soviet Union at the start of World War II contributed to the deaths of some 26 million Soviet citizens when the allies became foes.

The non-aggression treaty, one of three signed Friday, replaces agreements that once linked the Soviet Union to West Germany and East Germany. Moscow's ties to East Germany long hindered better relations with Bonn.

President Richard von Weizsaecker said the fall of the Berlin Wall, which paved the way for unity, "would not have been possible" without Gorbachev's political reforms.

Kohl also thanked Gorbachev for his contribution to the completion of German unity.

New Indian leader faces arduous task

NEW DELHI, India (AP) – A socialist leader named Friday as India's new prime minister said his government faces a "grim and challenging" task to quell widespread unrest that helped topple his predecessor.

Chandra Shekhar, who led efforts to unseat V.P. Singh as prime minister, pledged that his government will seek "to create a society of equals in a nation where thousands have died this year in battles over religious, ethnic and class differences.

The clashes were used to rally opposition against Singh, the first Indian prime minister to be ousted by Parliament. He lost a confidence vote Wednesday. The 63-year-old Chandra Shekhar is expected to be sworn in by President Ramaswamy Venkataraman on Saturday.

"In all humility, I would like to say that the task before us is arduous," Chandra Shekhar said. "It is so grim and challenging. But one has to make every endeavor to retrieve the situation."

At least 370 people have died in the last three weeks in Hindu-Moslem riots over a 460-year-old mosque that some Hindus claim was build on the site of the warrior god Rama. Hindus seeks to raze the mosque in Ayodhya in northeast India and build a temple.

Meanwhile, at least 150 upper-caste students have committed suicide or died in clashes with police to protest Singh's attempt to reserve more government jobs for low-caste Hindus.

Chandra Shekhar said he will seek Parliament's endorsement of his government by Nov. 20. So far, he has not disclosed his Cabinet plans.

Afrikaner church rejects apartheid as sin

RUSTENBURG, South Africa (AP) – The white Dutch Reformed Church joined other Christian denominations Friday in rejecting apartheid as a sin and confessed the church's role in implementing it.

The main church of the Dutch-descended Afrikaners who dominate the government had argued for decades that the Bible supported the system of legalized segregation. The position isolated it from other denominations.

But at the end of a weeklong conference of 90 Christian churches, leaders of the white Dutch Reformed Church joined in supporting a statement – the Rustenberg Declaration – condemning church participation in apartheid.

"We confess our own sin and acknowledge our heretical part in the policy of apartheid which has led to such extreme suffering," the joint statement said.

"We denounce apartheid in its intention, its implementation, and its consequences as an evil policy," the statement added.

The conference in Rustenburg, 60 miles northwest of Johannesburg, was the largest ever gathering of Christian churches in South Africa.

The declaration also recommended the government remove all apartheid laws, set up a one-person, one-vote democracy, seek equitable wealth distribution, restore land to blacks and arrange an affirmative action program to advance blacks.

The Rev. Peter Potgieter, head of the Dutch Reformed Church, told an impromptu news conference during final debate on the document that his church disagreed with some elements. He said it objected specifically to the call for a one-person, one-vote electoral system and other political recommendations, but agreed with the condemnation and confession of apartheid.

Former Contra rebels attack police station

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) – Former Contra rebels attacked a police station in eastern Nicaragua on Friday, leaving three guerrillas dead in the most violent anti-government clash in months, a Cabinet official said.

Thirty-five people, including nine police officers, were wounded in the battle, said Interior Minister Carlos Hurtado.

The attack appeared to be part of a growing weeklong protest in the eastern half of the country of President Violeta Chamorro's economic policies, her administration's ties with the opposition leftist Sandinistas and a failure to keep promises of resettlement aid to demobilized Contras.

Falling Soviet rocket causes strange light

PARIS (AP) – Mysterious lights observed by thousands of people in the night sky over France came from pieces of a Soviet rocket re-entering the atmosphere, the French space center said Friday.

The phenomenon, described by witnesses as a collection of small lights in a triangle shape, was seen across France on Monday evening.

Deputies arrest teens, file car theft charges

JEROME — Three teen-agers have been arrested in connection with a car theft Thursday night. Two 14-year-old girls and a 16-year-old boy were picked up Friday morning by Blaine County sheriff's deputies and brought back to Jerome, where the car theft occurred, said Jerome Police Chief George Silver III.

A car was taken from a residence in the 400 block of Fourth Avenue West around midnight and driven to Hailey, where it ran out of gas, Silver said. The juveniles attempted to take another car when the owner stopped them and called police.

The juveniles, two of whom are runaways, are being charged with grand theft auto and burglary.

Teen-agers had been staying in a Jerome house on and off for a few days last week, Silver said. The owners were out-of-town and the teen-agers came and went, taking money and coins which they spent on food.

Jerome drug sting results in arrest; other arrests pending

JEROME — Ray Wood, 18, has been placed under arrest and brought back to Jerome from Olympia, Wash., in connection with delivery of 1 gram of a controlled substance while he lived in Jerome. The crime carries a felony charge.

His arrest was the result of a sting operation with an undercover agent who lived and performed drug deals in a vacant storefront in Jerome.

This is the seventh arrest made in connection with the sting and Sheriff Larry Gold said as many as five more are pending.

Wood wasn't arrested immediately after the sting operation because he had said he would assist in getting the sheriff's department additional information about drug trafficing in the Jerome area, but he "decided to run away, so we arrested him," Gold said.

Wood is from the Chicago area where he faces a felony charge for forgery.

Grant will help hospitals improve care, control costs

BOISE — Five urban and rural Idaho hospitals, including Moritz Community Hospital in Sun Valley, will find it easier to improve care while keeping costs down with a $1 million private grant.

The Idaho facilities were selected from among 5,000 hospitals nationwide in competition for the grant.

Also benefiting are St. Luke's Regional Medical Center in Boise, Walter Knox Memorial Hospital in Emmett, McCall Memorial Hospital in McCall and the Elks Rehabilitation Hospital in Boise.

The $1 million grant, parceled out over the next five years, will be used to pay for staff and supplies to ensure the sweeping project is completed.

The Idaho hospitals and 67 others nationwide received grants as part of a $26.8 million program funded by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and The Pew Charitable Trusts, two of the largest private foundations in the nation.

South African leader claims Mandela not representative

TWIN FALLS – A black South African leader who says that Nelson Mandela does not speak for blacks in his country will lecture here Monday, his appearance sponsored by the Magic Valley Chapters of the John Birch Society.

Tamsanqa Linda, described as the president of 74 black township councils in the Port Elizabeth area of South Africa, will speak at 8 p.m. at the Weston Plaza Hotel, 1350 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

The organizers are requesting a $4 entrance donation for adults, $2 for children. For tickets or more information, call 733-1147.

Veterans Day holiday means meetings won't take place

TWIN FALLS – Because of the Veteran s Day holiday the Twin Falls County Commission and City Council will not meet Monday.

The commission generally holds a public action meeting on Mondays. The council either holds a public meeting or a work session.

County and city offices will reopen on Tuesday.

United Way donations doing well

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS – The United Way of Magic Valley has nearly reached the halfway point in its annual fund-raising campaign.

About $128,000 had been raised by Friday morning, and the campaign is well on its way to reaching the United Way's $265,000 goal.

"If the money keeps coming in like it has been, we'll make it," said United Way President Dan Brizee.

Idaho Power provided a boost with a $13,000 donation, up $3,000 from last year. The Magic Valley Regional Medical Center kicked in $6,000 and WestOne Bank added $4,000.

"It looks like all of our accounts are starting to fill up really well," although 75 percent of the large commercial accounts have yet to come in, Brizee said.

"I don't think we'll have any problem getting it," Brizee said. "It's just coming in slow," partly due to the United Way starting this year's campaign earlier.

Legion gains new members

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS – A bill signed into law by President Bush Oct. 30 created more than 3 million potential American Legion members in time for Veteran's Day observances Sunday and Monday.

Some of them will be on hand at City Park Sunday as the Magic Valley commemorates Veterans' Day.

Some veterans and non-veterans will get a long weekend. Banks, federal, state and county offices and the College of Southern Idaho will be closed Monday. But for all Magic Valley schools and most businesses, including the state liquor stores, it will be business at usual.

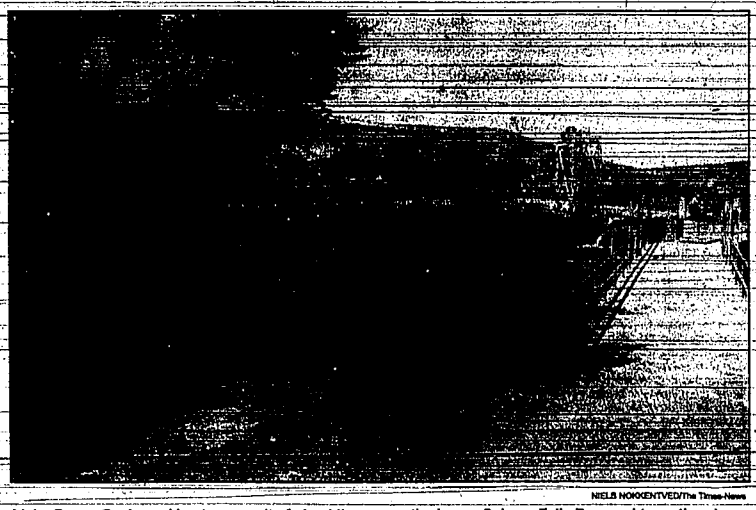

Senate Bill 3091 gave special status to veterans serving in the military during the time of the Panama and Grenada invasions and during the peacekeeping efforts in Lebanon in 1983-84.

Those veterans can now count themselves among those who can be represented by the Legion, a congressionally chartered organization open only to those servicemen and servicewomen in the military during times of war or national emergency.

The move allows the Legion to count more than 3½ million additional men and women as eligible for membership, about 2,000 of those in the Magic Valley, said Donald Siplon, past commander of Twin Falls American Legion Post 7.

"This is really a big deal to veterans organizations," Siplon said, noting that similar redefinitions have occurred only three other times in American nation's history.

The American Legion will join other local veterans groups for a ceremony at City Park at 11 a.m. After the ceremony, a luncheon to honor those veterans recognized under the new law will be held at the Prime Cut restaurant, Siplon said.

NIELS NOKKENTVED/The Times-News

Idaho Power Co. is seeking to renew its federal license on the Lower Salmon Falls Dam and two other dams in the Hagerman reach of the Snake River.

Idaho Power starts work early on license renewals

By N.S. Nokkentved
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS – Idaho Power Co. is trying to get a head start on its applications to relicense three of its hydroelectric projects at Magic Valley dams.

Utility officials will be in town Thursday to explain the procedure, the projects' background and to take public comment.

The 50-year licenses on the Bliss, Upper Salmon Falls and Lower Salmon Falls dams were issued in the late 1940s and will expire in the late 1990s. When the original licenses expire, anyone — an individual, company or municipality — can file to relicense the plant.

Though the licenses don't expire for another seven to nine years, Idaho Power must submit its applications to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission two years before the existing licenses expire. And it must fulfill a number of other obligations long before it submits its applications.

By December 1993 the utility must conduct hearings with state agencies, Indian tribes and the public. And five years before expiration date, the utility must issue a formal notice of intent to seek relicensing.

Idaho Power is trying to get an early start on the process to give everybody ample time to get involved, according to the company's hydro relicensing and compliance manager, Larry R. Wimer.

• Lower Salmon Falls dam license was issued effective December 1947 and expires 1997.

Idaho Power's relicensing hearing is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday at Weston Plaza.

• Bliss dam license was issued effective March 1948 and expires 1998.

• Upper Salmon Falls dam license was issued effective June 1949 and expires 1999.

Much of Idaho Power's effort is concentrated on a series of studies that will look at impact of the dams on recreation, fish, wildlife, water quality and archaeology and how the utility has complied with its license.

Proposals to list several salmon and snails species as endangered could affect the utility's relicensing plans.

Salmon no longer migrate up the Snake River as far as the Upper and Lower Salmon Falls dams. But listing five salmon species as endangered, as proposed by several Indian tribes and environmental groups, could affect how the utility operates its hydroelectric dams on the middle Snake.

Four snail species that live in the river below Lower Salmon Falls Dam also have been recommended by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service staff as endangered species. IPC's planned studies include these snails and ways of protecting them and the ecosystem they inhabit.

The application also will include a proposed plan to more than double the capacity at the Upper Salmon Dam by adding a powerhouse to take advantage of water that now is spilled back into the old river bed.

The new powerhouse would add up to an additional 48 megawatts to the plant's current 40-megawatt capacity.

The studies will help determine "if and by how much" the plant is expanded, Wimer said. Constraints on operations at the other two dams would eliminate any expansions there.

The utility's presentation will include slides providing background on the three projects. Officials also will explain the need for power, cost and the import and export of power.

A comment period for state agencies and the public will extend 60 days, but the utility will accept comments up to the time the applications are filed "to refine our studies," relicensing attorney Laurel Hecock said.

Comments need to be sent in as early as possible if they are to incorporated into the application.

"If they want to be heard, the sooner the better," Wimer said.

It would be impossible to go back and redo studies in response to comments.

"We've tried to cover everything in these studies," he said.

Once the applications have been submitted, FERC may require additional study in some areas.

FERC has the discretion to license new projects up to 50 years, but renewed licenses vary. Idaho Power expects the three project to be relicensed for 30 years.

Gooding residents express opinions on overhauling city irrigation system

By Suzanne Huxhold
Times-News correspondent

GOODING – More than 120 local residents showed up to voice their opinions at an informational public meeting concerning the overhauling of an irrigation system that has been in place since 1908.

Mayor Gene Heller and City Council members said they were surprised by the large number of people who turned out for the meeting, which was held to gather public comments on four irrigation alternatives the city is considering.

The council spent the first 15 minutes making additional copies of the informational handouts.

Heller began the meeting by telling the gathering that he and the council are aware of the problems with the present ditch irrigation system. And he warned that the meeting was not going to be a forum for personal gripes.

"We're not going to change the world tonight, we're going to discuss an irrigation system that's been in place since 1908," Heller said. "We know the problems, we're asking you to give us constructive criticism."

"We're here to dispense information, whichever irrigation (system), we'll decide later."

Though most of the public's comments came in the form of questions, by the end of the meeting, residents seemed resigned to the fact that something must be done.

Heller said that with the present system – a ditch flooding system that uses water running through the Wood River canal – the city loses about 25 percent of its irrigation water through cracks in cement ditches, sink holes and dirt ditches.

'There were days and days we were supposed to have 200 inches and we didn't have 50.'

Gooding ditch rider Earl Haigh

He also said that some of the water the city should receive is being stolen. When the water comes down the canal, it is accessed by 23 water rights holders through headgates before it reaches Gooding. Heller asserts that city irrigation water was low this year because some of those water users took more than their fair share. Heller said none of the headgates is locked by the canal company to prevent such theft.

There is little chance of stopping the theft, said Heller, and he joked later that he didn't know what would happen to the water thieves even if they were caught in the act. But the city has applied for a diversion change that would allow it to get its water before it could be stolen.

Earl Haigh, a city ditch rider, said it isn't the city's fault that there wasn't enough water for irrigation this summer. He said with the slew ditch, sinkholes in the canal and farmers stealing water, the city got less than half the water to which it was entitled.

"There were days and days we were supposed to have 200 inches and we didn't have 50," Haigh said.

Scott Bybee, an engineer with JUB Engineers of Twin Falls, explained the city's irrigation alternatives and what the cost would be to the city and the taxpayer.

There was general agreement between the public and the council that the current system needs extensive and expensive repair. Bybee told the group that if the city does not overhaul the current ditch system, the cost would be about $80,000 for the first year, and increase substantially every year for "Band-Aid" repairs and increased personnel costs.

Currently, Gooding spends about $70,000 per year on irrigation, or about $25 per city lot.

The second alternative involves a $120,000 initial cost for major repairs on the ditch system, or about $30 per lot. Money for the project would be raised either by a bond issue election, a local improvement district or a lump sum public payment. The yearly cost would be $70,000.

The third choice is to abandon the ditch system and go to a sprinkler system for the city. That would cost an initial $520,000, or about $120 per city lot, including those lots in the "core district," – the commercial section that does not flood irrigate and pays only a $3.50 monthly administrative fee rather than the $25 paid by irrigators.

The third option has a yearly cost estimate of $55,000 for upkeep and repair.

Bybee also offered a fourth alternative: using domestic well water for irrigation. The city wells' output would have to increase about 21 percent, and the initial cost would be limited to private expenditures for hoses, sprinklers and other materials.

Fish farmer holds off on alligator idea

By Mark Kind
Times-News writer

BUHL – A Buhl fish farmer may still bring alligators to Idaho, but he was too busy this summer with trout, tilapia and catfish to sink his teeth into a new venture.

Leo Ray said an expansion in his trout production this year took a big bite out of his staff's time.

"We've had some fairly rapid growth in our trout production and any time you do that you put a lot of stress on your staff," Ray said.

Ray has warm-water springs that he uses to raise tilapia and catfish. Alligators could probably thrive in the year-round heat, allowing him to produce alligators more quickly and cheaper than Southern farmers, Ray said. And they could eat the entrails of harvested fish.

"I've got free water, I've got free heat and I've got free food. We should do it," Ray said. "We could get (an alligator) to six feet in the amount of time it takes them to get one to three or four feet."

Meanwhile, his son is experimenting with bullfrogs, trying to sell to the education market for dissections.

The tadpoles are thriving, but maturing frogs aren't interested in the lifeless food pellets normally fed to fish. They would rather eat bugs.

"You need to make that pellet jump once in a while," Ray said.

Rupert council OKs fuel tank removal

By Stacey Kindig
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT – City officials earlier this week tabled an ordinance to raise garbage removal rates and authorized the city's fire department to oversee removal of city owned underground fuel tanks.

Council members had previously voted to construct an ordinance to raise the cost of refuse disposal to Rupert residents.

The ordinance was read at Tuesday's meeting but was put on temporary hold after City Attorney Donald Chisholm noticed discrepancies in some of the proposed rate changes.

The council will hear the revised proposal at its next regular meeting before voting on the measure.

The council has authorized Rupert Fire Chief Thayne Taylor to take charge of removal and disposal of the city's underground fuel tanks.

Taylor said he has witnessed the removal process several times and assured the council that the fire department is equipped to do the job.

Taylor said the empty tanks will be aired out and tested to determine whether the level of fuel left inside is below the explosion limit. The department will also pump out and properly dispose of any sediment waste.

The council announced it also will be calling for bids on the purchase of new fuel tanks.

In other business, the council:

• Accepted the low bid of $17,668.07 from Norman Supply of Idaho Falls for gasket pipe and valves. The supply of pipe is kept in reserves by the city for irrigation and domestic water use.

• Accepted the sole bid offered by Roger Crane to farm the city owned waste water lagoon lands for the next five years at the rate of $115 per farm acre on 110 acres, and $85 per farm acre on approximately 90 additional acres.

• Approved a request from Minidoka County to waive the building permit required to remodel the county's jail into a juvenile jail facility.

• Tabled a request from the public works department to call for bids on a lease-purchase agreement for approximately $17,000 to purchase new land survey equipment.

Split Senate issue may go to court

The Associated Press

Idaho Senate leaders are scrambling to determine whether Republican Lt. Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's tie-breaking powers would keep control of the evenly split legislative chamber in GOP hands.

The issue could wind up before the Idaho Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, House Assistant Majority Leader Mike Simpson says the GOP's loss of seven seats Tuesday makes him the favorite to unseat House Speaker Tom Boyd.

Senate Democrats picked up two seats Tuesday, giving each side 21 votes. Because Otter has the power to break tie votes, President Pro Tem Michael Crapo, R-Idaho Falls, maintains the Republicans retain administrative control of the Senate.

But Democratic Leader Bruce Sweeney is citing New Mexico's experience in the late 1970s, when its 42-member state Senate was evenly split.

The New Mexico Supreme Court ultimately concluded that state's lieutenant governor had no authority to break a tie vote involving Senate administrative matters.

In that case, the Republicans and Democrats elected two presidents pro tem and split up the committee chairmanships.

"Evidently, it worked out. I don't know how well," said Hoyt Clifton of Santa Fe, elections director for the New Mexico secretary of State's office.

Crapo had not seen the New Mexico decision.

To some degree, the decision's impact upon Idaho will depend upon the similarity of the two states' constitutions. And the ruling of one state Supreme Court is not binding upon another state court, he said.

"I have to sit down and meet with Butch Otter first to see what his feelings are ... but my present feeling is the constitution of the state provides a mechanism for the control of the administrative operations of the Senate in the case of a tie," Crapo said. "And I don't think it would be appropriate for that to be relinquished simply to avoid a challenge."

Sweeney was not ready to predict a Supreme Court battle over the issue. But he emphasized his belief that Otter's tie-breaking role is not absolute.

"We're plowing new ground," Sweeney said. "I don't know all of these answers, really. All I know is, it's got to be fair to both sides. That makes sense and that's logical. Because we're equal. It's hard (for the GOP) to get away from the absolute power of the past when you've had it. For the future of what we're doing, things need to be equal."

The legislative organizational session will commence Dec. 6 at Boise.

However, Sweeney held out the possibility that organizational session could be delayed if the balance of power question in the Senate is not settled.

"A lot will depend on how well we get this together," Sweeney said. "I think most of this needs to be agreed on as much as we can before we actually get here (at Boise)."

Simpson, R-Blackfoot, announced after the May primary he planned to seek Republican Boyd's post.

"Before the election, I think it was an even heat, give or take two votes," the dentist said. "Right now, I think I'm ahead."

Simpson said most of the seven lost seats would have been votes to retain Boyd of Genesee in the post. Most of the GOP contenders lost were moderates.

Boyd acknowledged most of the seven votes would have been his. But he suggested he still had 38 of the 56 votes in the GOP caucus and would have "no problem" holding on in the House organization session.

Simpson said he would be working hard to capture votes in the North Idaho Chamber of Commerce Legislation Tour in Coeur d'Alene, which begins Sunday.

Sen. Roger Madsen, R-Boise, said Thursday he plans to devote his political energy to GOP Finance Chairman Larry Eastland's quest for elected office. Eastland said he is considering a run for governor or 2nd District Congress.

Madsen and Sen. Rod Beck, R-Boise, were upset losers Tuesday to pro-choice Democrats Cynthia Scanlin and Sally Snodgrass.

"Wherever Larry runs, that's where I'll work," said Madsen. "Larry Eastland is our most creative, intelligent, involved, gifted figure in the state. I'll follow and work with Larry to help the party remain the majority party in Idaho."

Bellevue works on waste water system

By Deborah Shimkus
Times-News correspondent

BELLEVUE – The Big Wood River is the next hurdle the city must cross as it works to complete the new water treatment system.

A pipe, carrying waste water from the city to the water treatment plant, will cross the Big Wood river just north of the Glendale bridge. The pipe can be built over the river or buried beneath it.

According to Vance Forsgren, engineer for the project, there are pros and cons for each, but his preference is to bury the pipe.

Pipes built over rivers in projects elsewhere in the state have had problems: they have frozen and cracked in severe winters, and have fallen prey to vandalism.

"No pipes buried under rivers have had problems" said Forsgren.

The decision regarding how the pipes are placed across the river rests with the county Planning Department, which must issue a permit for the river crossing.

In other business:

• Concerns regarding the safety of the burned Silver Dollar Bar and Cafe prompted the council to agree to request that its owner take immediate action to remove the debris. The Silver Dollar, which held a prominent location on Main Street in downtown Bellevue, was destroyed by fire Sept. 20 and 21. Both the fire chief and the building inspector have condemned the building.

• Bellevue Marshall Dean Biggs raised the issue of unreasonable speed limits and passing zones within city limits. At the north end of Bellevue, still close to many businesses, the speed limit is raised to 55 mph. With traffic coming from Carey, Shoshone and Gooding, there is a real rush-hour hazard, according to Biggs.

"We've suffered a few accidents out there this fall."

Bellevue cannot change the signs on the state highway, but will request the Department of Transportation to act quickly to take the necessary steps to revise the speed and passing zones in the Bellevue area.

Boise water rates rise; conservation urged

BOISE (AP) — Rates for Boise Water Corp. customers are going up. But the bite won't be as bad for those who conserve.

The Public Utilities Commission said Thursday it has granted the water company an overall rate increase of 9.8 percent, with the higher charges designed to hit hardest on those who use the most water. The company requested 13.3 percent.

Minimum water users, those using 1,000 cubic feet or less over two months, will see no increase, with the minimum remaining $16.71. The company said the current average water bill is $199 to $225 per year, or $33-$37 bimonthly.

During hearings on the rate increase, the PUC heard testimony from its staff that Boise Water wasn't doing enough to encourage water conservation.

"Boise Water's customers must be informed of cost-effective methods of water conservation," the PUC said in its order.

University peer change may wait

MOSCOW (AP) — Idaho's four universities and college may stick with their current set of peer institutions until their faculty salaries reach the average of those peers.

The state Board of Education originally was slated to consider a new set of peer institutions for the four-year schools next week at Pocatello.

But earlier this week, the presidents agreed to recommend that the board not change the schools' peers until the faculty salary gap between the institutions and the current peers is closed.

Faculty salaries in Idaho are 6.5 percent behind those of their out-of-state peers. The Education Board is asking lawmakers to reduce half the difference in the coming fiscal year.

University of Idaho President Elisabeth Zinser said Thursday salaries should not be the primary focus in the selection of corresponding institutions.

"Since salary has such a high profile, it has taken on a level of significance that it shouldn't," she said. "We are just as happy to stay with our existing peers for the moment ... If we rush it, it's going to be politicized more than we want it to be."

Gov. Cecil Andrus fears the new peers might be used to justify driving up administrative salaries faster than faculty salaries, said Alice Koskela, special assistant to Andrus.

Professional and administrative salaries at the four-year schools currently lag 6.9 percent behind of those competitors. And the Education Board last month approved a policy requiring the four-year schools to gain prior approval for administrative raises exceeding 10 percent and administrative salaries above the peer average.

Boise State University President John Keiser said postponing changing the schools' peers will avoid a "public squabble" while there are more important things to do.

"I don't want to argue about it for three or four months," he said. Legislators convene in two months in Boise.

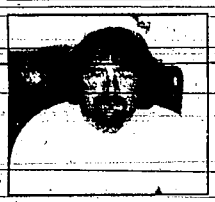

Lewis-Clark State College President Lee Vickers said he does not consider delaying changing the peer list "a major problem for us."

But he said the college has three of its nine peers in Montana and two others in New Mexico and that tends to skew faculty salary comparisons.

The disparity between faculty salaries paid by LCSC and its peers would grow from 4 percent to 7.3 percent if the board adopted LCSC's proposed list of new peers.

Idaho State University President Richard Bowen said ISU probably will be better off sticking with its existing list until faculty salaries meet the average of its peers.

Bybee said the storage and pumping capacity is sufficient for this alternative. But he said some residential service is inadequate now, and would only get worse if residents used domestic water to irrigate lawns and gardens.

A new service line from a residence to the city's main line would cost approximately $1,500 to $2,000 per line, the cost of which would be borne by the resident.

Switching to domestic water would cost about $46,000 per year, or about $11.14 per city lot. Cost estimates were based on a fee of 10 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Bybee said this fee would probably increase, however, with inflation and as water becomes more scarce. Some southern United States communities are now paying more than $5 per 1,000 gallons.

Though several residents tried to pin Bybee down on which is the best alternative, Bybee said there are pros and cons to each choice.

But he said is sure that costs would only increase the longer the city maintains the status-quo.

Heller told the gathering that all comments would be considered and that another meeting would be held before the subject comes to a vote.

Church news

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will begin its annual presentation of the Know Your Religion lecture series in several Magic Valley areas this week. Lectures will be presented in the Mountain Home, Twin Falls, Jerome, Carey, Burley and Rupert areas.

The series features a presentation in each area each month from November through April. Series pre-registration fees are $10 per individual, $19 per couple (or any two individuals) and $22 per family (any size). Registration at the door is $3 per individual. Pre-registration is encouraged and will be handled through a bishop or education representative in each ward. A season pass is valid at any Idaho area Know Your Religion program.

Robert D. Marcum, religion instructor at Ricks College in Rexburg, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Twin Falls Stake Center on Maurice Street. He will speak on "Celestial Covenants and Partnerships."

Marcum will also speak on the same topic at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 17 at the Hailey LDS Church on Broadford Road.

L. Edward Brown, Church Education System area director, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Mountain Home Stake Center, 1150 N. Eighth E. His topic will be "Hey, Don't Skip Those Isaiah Chapters in the Book of Mormon."

Brown will speak again on the same topic at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 17 at the Jerome Stake Center, east of Jerome.

Stephen E. Clark, religion instructor at Ricks College, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Burley Stake Center, 2050 Normal Ave. The title of his lecture will be "How the Book of Mormon Helps us Lay Down our Weapons of Rebellion."

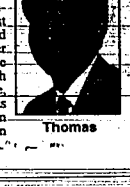

Clark will also speak on the same subject at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 17 at the Rupert Stake Center, 324 E. 18th.

TWIN FALLS – Elder Richard Bryant Traughber, son of Clyde Traughber and Wanda Price, both of Twin Falls, has been called to serve a two-year mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the Chile Vina Del Mar Mission. He will speak in Sacrament Meeting at 10 a.m. Sunday at the College Ward on Falls Avenue East and will enter the Mission Training Center in Provo, Utah, Wednesday. An open house will be held beginning at 6 p.m. Sunday at the Stephen Dixon home, 107 E. 530 S., Jerome.

Traughber

TWIN FALLS – The Rev. Scott Thomas will assume the pastorate of the Bible Baptist Church of Twin Falls in the middle of November. He has most recently served as youth minister at the Temple Baptist Church in Tallahassee, Fla., and has also served in youth ministry in Denver, Colo.

Thomas

Thomas and his wife, Jeannie, have been married nine years and have one son, Derrin.

TWIN FALLS – "The Image of Christ," a musical ensemble from Boise Bible College, will present a concert at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Community Christian Church on Grandview Drive South.

The group will also present a concert at 6 p.m. Sunday at the Kimberly Christian Church, 307 Madison E., Kimberly.

The ensemble, which consists of five young people, will travel throughout the Pacific Northwest during the summer of 1990, representing Boise Bible College at youth rallies, conventions and churches. Steve Barnes, professor of Christian Ministries at Boise Bible College, will travel with the group.

RUHL – The Immaculate Conception Catholic Community will have a special visitor day Sunday. Masses are at 8 and 10:15 a.m., each followed by a free coffee hour in honor of the event. Confraternity of Christian Doctrine (Sunday school) for grades kindergarten through high school is at 9 a.m. and adult education begins at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

BUHL – Calvary Assembly of God Church, Poplar and Truck Avenue, will host the Rev. Jim Hicks for six days of revival meetings this week. The event will begin with a Kids' Crusade at 10:50 a.m. Sunday and will continue with services at 7 p.m. daily Sunday through Friday. The public is invited to attend. For more information, call the church at 543-6179.

Hicks has been a pastor and evangelist for over 35 years and has pastored churches in several states, including Idaho in Twin Falls, Emmett and Fruitland.

KIMBERLY – The Rev. John David Hicks will be the guest speaker at revival services this week at the Kimberly Church of the Nazarene, 206 Madison W. He will speak at services at 7 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and will present a Spiritual Warfare Workshop from 9 a.m. to noon Nov. 17. He will also speak at services at 10:50 a.m. and 6 p.m. Nov. 18. The public is invited. A free-will offering will be taken and nursery is provided.

Hicks has served as a pastor for 19 years and now travels full time as an evangelist.

He has worked as a professor of speech and evangelism at the Canadian Nazarene College in Winnipeg, Manitoba and taught homiletics at Western Evangelical Seminary in Portland, Ore.

JEROME – The First Church of God, 131 E. Ave. A., will host a turkey dinner with all the trimmings for the community Nov. 18.

The day will begin with a family-style Bible reading time at 9:45 a.m., followed by a Thanksgiving worship service at 11 a.m. with a sermon by the Rev. Elroy Weixel.

Dinner will be served at 1 p.m. by the youth of the church. More than 40 people will be preparing and serving the meal. The public is invited and the dinner is free. For more information, call 324-2777 or 324-4523.

Ukrainian cardinal says he's going home

ROME (AP) — The leader of the Ukrainian Catholic Church, Cardinal Myroslav Lubachivsky, said Monday he will visit his homeland in April for the first time since leaving in 1937.

The church was legalized last month after more than 40 years of suppression.

Lubachivsky, 76, who is based in Rome, said he was invited by the City Council of Lvov. Exact dates of the trip will be announced later.

Lubachivsky, who holds the title of major archbishop of Lvov, said, "I cannot express my happiness at being able to return."

An estimated 4 million or more Catholics live in the Ukraine.

Lubachivsky left when the Ukraine was under Polish occupation.

The pope appointed him metropolitan-archbishop of Philadelphia in 1979 and made him cardinal six years later.

He is a U.S. citizen.

Episcopal Church keeps Phoenix convention

NEW YORK (AP) — The Episcopal Church is going ahead with plans to hold its triennial General Convention in Phoenix despite Arizona voters' rejection of two ballot measures that would have established a Martin Luther King Day.

National Football League Commissioner Paul Tagliabue this week recommended that the 1993 Super Bowl be moved in protest from Phoenix, but Episcopal Presiding Bishop Edmond Browning said more good can be done by staying.

"The Episcopal Church will go to Phoenix. While we cannot ignore or condone the results of the referendum, I believe that by working with people of good faith who are in Arizona, we can come and together make a vigorous witness for the dignity of all God's people, and against the evils of racism," Browning said.

But the head of a lobbying group for South African sanctions that received its start with a grant from a black Episcopal Church leader said the church's decision was "unfortunate."

"The Episcopal Church should be in the front lines here and it is terribly regrettable to find the church lagging behind the NFL," said Randall Robinson, head of TransAfrica in Washington, D.C.

Up to 9,000 people are expected to attend the 1990 General Convention July 11-20 in Phoenix, church News Director James Solheim said.

David Radcliffe, president of Phoenix & Valley of the Sun Convention and Visitors Bureau, said he knows of at least four groups that have canceled reservations for conventions or stays at hotels since the propositions failed in Tuesday's election.

Norman Braman, owner of the Philadelphia Eagles and chairman of the Super Bowl site selection committee, said he expected that the NFL commissioner's recommendation to move the game would be approved.

"I think it would be an affront to our public and our players if the game is played in Phoenix," Braman said.

Browning said in his statement that he was "terribly disappointed" by the decision to reject the King holiday.

Browning, spiritual leader of the nearly 2.5 million-member denomination, noted that he had lobbied the Arizona Legislature for a King holiday, but had said at the time "I was not issuing threats about not coming to Arizona."

"I came to say that I believed that they were confronting a moral issue of deep significance, and that is of racism, Browning said.

"Dr. King brought to us a message of what this country could be if we were able to find racial equality. Observing a holiday in his name goes deeper than honoring him. It reminds us of who we must be as a non-racist society."

Arizona Bishop Joseph T. Heistand said he will continue to struggle for the passage of a Martin Luther King Civil Rights Day.

But Robinson, who addressed an Episcopal gathering of social justice leaders this summer, said he supported a boycott to protest against the erosion of civil rights in the nation.

Church leaders critical of new movie rating

NEW YORK (AP) — Some American church leaders say the movie industry is pulling a deceptive ruse on the public, making the bad look good by labeling the ugly with a pretty name.

Such is the general assessment by a broad range of churches, Protestant, Eastern Orthodox and Roman Catholic, of the new system under which previously X-rated movies now are rated NC-17.

Terming the change by the Motion Picture Association of America a surrender to "sexually exploitative material," officials of the U.S. Catholic Conference and the National Council of Churches said:

"It is an arrogant and ill-advised decision which deeply affects the public good. It was made in isolation, without public consultation. The change is neither in the public interest nor in the best interest of the industry."

"Changing the name of the 'X' category does not change the nature of the material."

Southern Baptists, the largest denomination not in the council, also endorsed the joint protest. The Rev. Richard D. Land, head of that denomination's social-concerns agency, said:

"The change has all the appearances of watering down an effective wall that helped people stay away from pornographic materials."

Religious publications contended the change camouflages the nature of the formerly "X" category so movie theaters would be more apt to show such films.

It gives movie-makers "a respectable category for their excesses," says the Rev. James M. Wall, editor of the ecumenical weekly, The Christian Century. "The restraint is removed."

Wall, a movie buff and chairman of the National Council of Churches' Media Ethics and Advocacy Committee, said the change basically is "about what kind of world our children will live in."

The Catholic Messenger, diocesan weekly in Davenport, Iowa, says the "marketplace now has more freedom than it had two weeks ago to disturb your children's growth."

The editorial adds that films of "sickening violence and the debased or irresponsible or glamorized fantasy use of sex" will now be "much more widely distributed and shown."

The church critics aren't advocating censorship or government curbs on films, warning that the change itself will provide ammunition for "those who already are calling for regulation of the media."

"That is unfortunate, because a voluntary system of self-regulation that skirts constitutional concerns, yet affords at least a minimum of protection to the public, is workable," the interchurch statement says.

The movie industry contends that the "X" rating has come to be understood as indicating only pornographic films and thus has downgraded some serious, adult films of artistic merit.

Most theater chains don't show X-rated films and most newspapers won't take advertising for them. Some newspapers, such as the Birmingham (Ala.) News, extended the advertising ban to NC-17 films.

"Smut is still smut," the News editorialized.

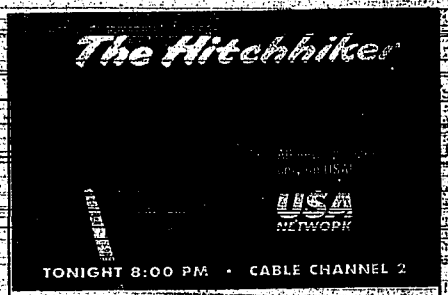

In the new system, films considered of some merit but whose sexual or violence portrayals exceed limits for an "R" rating are to be given the new "NC-17" rating, meaning no children under 17 are to be admitted.

The "R" or restricted rating, meaning admission of youngsters only if accompanied by a parent, is continued, with explanations provided on why a film is placed in that category such as its depiction of sexual activity, violence, profanity, drug use or suicide.

However, no explanations will be given for "NC-17" films.

The motion picture association said they would "continue to be evaluated as X-rated films have been in the past, that is, on the basis that most parents would agree such films should not be viewed by youngsters.

Methodists seek to revitalize denomination

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — United Methodist bishops, facing a two-decade decline in church membership, have launched an effort to revitalize the nearly 9-million-member denomination.

A pastoral letter, "Vital Congregations, Faithful Disciples," was released Wednesday by 100 bishops attending an international conference in Fort Worth.

The letter and a 160-page supporting document calls for revitalizing local congregations in the United Methodist Church.

The denomination, like other mainline Protestant groups, has lost members over the past 20 years. Its membership fell from a peak of 11 million in the mid-1960s to 8,873,638 last year, down about 68,000 from the previous year, the denomination reported.

Church officials say the revitalization effort is not meant as a quick solution to the membership loss, but many are hoping it will stop the steady erosion.

Retired Memphis, Tenn., Bishop Roy Clark, executive director of the committee that prepared the letter, said a section of the document talks about the "malaise" in the denomination.

"It's not a negative judgment against anybody, but means we need to be awakened to the fact that we need to be more vital because the culture no longer supports the church as it once did," he said.

"The world in which our faith seemed secure is passing away," the letter says.

About 3,200 clergy and lay people are taking part in the conference, called "The Gathering." It is scheduled to continue through Sunday.

After the conference, the United Methodist Council of Bishops, a policymaking body, will meet Nov. 6-9.

Can You Find The Drug Pusher In This Picture?

We all know what drug pushers look like. We've seen them often enough on television. But the frightening thing is, a kid is more likely to be pushed into drugs by some innocent-looking classmate.

Studies show that kids are eight times more likely to use drugs if their friends use drugs. As a parent, how do you beat odds like that?

First, realize that your preteen children are at risk. Then, find out everything you can about drug abuse. Next, talk to your kids. Let them know how you feel about drugs. Find out how they feel. Then, and this is very important, get to know your kids' friends — and their parents.

In other words, if you're in the picture, chances are a pusher won't be.

War threat soothes, horrifies relatives of hostages in Middle East

The Associated Press

Families of American hostages trapped by Saddam Hussein said Friday they were terrified and strangely soothed by President Bush's decision to deploy thousands more U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

"I'm relieved that it appears we're finally going to do something ... in need of letting those people not over there," said Theresa Murphy, whose father is one of the holdouts at the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait.

The addition of 150,000 U.S. soldiers and Moscow's qualified consent to the use of force signals a strengthened allied resolve against Iraq and its 3-month-old occupation of Kuwait.

It is a resolve shared by many relatives of the estimated 1,000 Americans either held at Iraqi military installations, holed up at the U.S. embassies in Iraq and Kuwait or hidden in "safe" houses.

"I don't want to sound like a warmonger — because I'm not," Ms. Murphy said Friday from her home in Fremont, Calif. "But my father is already at risk and the longer he stays, the more at risk he is."

The prospect of war is horrifying to those with loved ones who could be caught in the crossfire. But increasingly, relatives said, military action seems the only way to free the hostages and the tiny country of Kuwait.

"He's over there in the middle of it and I'm afraid," said Tamara Rinehart of Sarver, Pa., whose husband has also taken refuge in the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait. "Still, this seems to be what he wants."

Jack Rinehart is among a number of hostages who, in letters smuggled out of Iraq and Kuwait in recent weeks, have urged their families to make a case for quick, decisive military action in the region.

"When you read his letters, what becomes clear is that (the hostages) don't have a lot of time," said attorney David McDonald Jr., whose friend and client has been hiding in Kuwait.

"I don't think military action would be anybody's first choice," said McDonald, who asked that his friend's identity be withheld. "But things are very tight, food supplies are low ... the Iraqis are everywhere. The hostages don't have time to wait for protracted negotiations."

The situation is trickier still for those Americans and other foreigners designated as "human shields." Those hostages held at scattered military installations and chemical plants could be closer to death.

"If the shooting starts they're in a very scary position," said Betty Seago, whose husband, Guy, has been allowed to call home several times recently from unspecified strategic locations in Iraq. She has heard the quiet panic in his voice, and felt utter frustration at her inability to help.

"He's in a different position than those in hiding ... because the Iraqis are right there with him," said Mrs. Seago of Johnson City, Tenn. "The idea of war looks very different through his eyes."

But Mrs. Seago and others said their hopes for a negotiated resolution have dwindled over the weeks as the political rhetoric and troop numbers have mounted.

French, Iraqi deal reported

The Associated Press

An Iraqi political newspaper said Friday Baghdad's foreign minister and a former French official held talks that led to the release of more than 300 French hostages from Iraq. France denied it sanctioned the talks.

Former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt left Baghdad for Frankfurt Friday aboard a German jetliner carrying 177 Western captives to freedom. Brandt negotiated the release of the hostages, who included three Americans.

Among the captives allowed to leave Baghdad with Brandt on Friday were three Americans: Miles Hoffman, 33, of Columbus, Ga., and Don and Brenda Swanke of Los Angeles, a husband and wife. About 1,000 Americans are still held.

The three had been held as human shields at strategic Iraqi sites to deter attack by the multinational forces stationed in the gulf region.

Western officials have charged that independent efforts by governments and former leaders to win release of their nationals risks dividing the world alliance against Iraq, which invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

But speaking in Bonn, Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Friday said no one can "drive a wedge" into the international solidarity.

Secretary of State James A. Baker met Friday with British officials in London, on a weeklong tour of Middle Eastern and European nations to drum up support for possible military action against Iraq.

Later, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said London and Washington stood "absolutely together" on the gulf crisis. Baker was to meet in Paris with French officials on Saturday.

In Moscow, the previous stop on Baker's tour, a senior U.S. official said Friday that the moderate Arab forces would fight alongside U.S. troops to liberate Kuwait, but he was uncertain that France would go along.

"I don't know where the French would be," the official said on condition of anonymity.

France has made no formal public pledge regarding the circumstances under which it would fight Iraq, saying such decisions should be made by the U.N. Security Council.

Iraq's Al-Jumhouriya newspaper reported Friday that Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz and former French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson met for secret talks endorsed by Baghdad.

The daily did not say when or where the meeting between Aziz and Cheysson took place. Arab sources said the talks, set up by the Palestine Liberation Organization, took place in Tunis late last month, one week before Saddam said French nationals were free to go.

French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas denied that Cheysson or anyone else had a mandate to negotiate the release of hostages, freed by Saddam in late October. France has repeatedly said it made no deal with Iraq.

What's what?

Marching to rhythm

You've read that Swiss pikemen five centuries ago were the first military men who marched in step to rhythm. Had to. They carried 18-foot spears. Out of sync, they'd have knocked one another's heads off. But there's more to it than efficient troop movement, what? Lot of parade watchers get tears in their eyes at the sight of marching columns. Try explaining the why of that.

Of the American woman, Oscar Wilde said, "The secret of her charm is she behaves as though she were beautiful."

If a man is a true kleptomaniac, he is likely to steal only one kind of thing. Watches maybe. Or screwdrivers. Even cans of sardines. Mainly, though, kleptomania has been associated with disturbed women, and they tend to be more various in their selections.

WHISTLER

Artist James M. Whistler, the one with the mother, claimed he could tell how much money he owed a creditor by the way said creditor knocked on his door. A loud pounding meant a small debt. The lender didn't care whether he offended. A sharp but not insistent knock meant a medium debt. The collector was cautious but determined. A gentle tap suggested a large debt. The visitor had a lot to lose.

Some early Romans hollowed out watermelon halves for helmets.

Just about all the impostors among white-collar criminals are men. Women rarely impersonate other women in frauds. Why is that?

CRITIC

That literary curmudgeon Ambrose Bierce once wrote a single-sentence review that read: "The covers of this book are too far apart."

That once-popular beefsteak called "Chateaubriand" was named in honor of a Frenchman who never ate meat.

Q. What's an "Oxbow Lake"?

A. A lake formed when a crooked river cuts across a sharp bend to change course.

BPA: Increase river flows for fish migration

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Snake River flows during spring salmon migration should be increased by 50 to 100 percent, the Bonneville Power Administration says.

In a plan released Thursday, BPA proposed that regional agencies, states, tribes and interest groups write a comprehensive, long-term agreement to reverse the decline of wild salmon stocks within five years and to double the number of salmon and steelhead by 2010.

It includes 24 specific measures as well as a package to aid salmon restoration said.

The plan is the agency's contribution to the "Salmon Summit" organized by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., in response to petitions asking that four stocks of Snake River salmon and one of Columbia River salmon be listed as threatened or endangered species under federal law.

Representives of environmental groups, the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, several Indian tribes and industry groups have been working with mediators to write a plan by Feb. 1.

"The proposal is a broad and long-term solution that strengthens salmon runs while also ensuring that the region's renewable system can deliver power and benefits," said Jack Robertson, BPA assistant administrator, said Friday it would cost ratepayers in the region and taxpayers throughout the nation. But he said it alone would not force BPA to build expensive, new plants.

"We believe the actions we propose are breaking new ground and that they can be delivered in our overall goal of stable power rates for all of the Northwest," Robertson said.

"The proposal is a framework for solutions in all areas."

The BPA proposal calls for timing release of Snake River runoff in the spring to help wild salmon and to increase storage water.

Students agree to drug tests

COEUR d'ALENE (AP) — Hundreds of North Idaho high school students have voluntarily submitted to random drug tests to prove they're drug-free and receive discounts at some retail stores, bowling alleys and health clubs.

This school year 350 students at Coeur d'Alene High School and 14 at Lakeland High in Rathdrum have volunteered for the drug tests. At the end of November, the testing will be available for Post Falls High students.

The students are participating in Idaho Drug Free Youth, a program that rewards kids for staying drug-free.

"There are lots of prevention programs for children, but not for adolescents," said Joe McCarron, executive director of IDFY, pronounced "I-defy."

McCarron, a counselor with the Port of Hope crisis intervention center in Coeur d'Alene, patterned IDFY after the Drug-Free Youth in Texas program, called "Defy It."

McCarron said he's received inquiries about Idaho's program from New York City; Orlando, Fla.; Oakland, Calif.; and British Columbia.

IDFY students with parental permission voluntarily submit to random drug tests at school. As long as the tests show no drug use, the students keep a photo-identification card. The students can use the cards to receive discounts from area retailers.

If a urine test indicates the use of marijuana, cocaine, amphetamines or methamphetamines, the student takes the test again. If the second test affirms the results of the first, the student loses his or her IDFY card for 30 days.

At the end of the 30 days, the student may take another urine test.

A council of IDFY students at each school decides penalties for alleged drug-users.

Corrections board to visit Pocatello sites

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Board of Correction members have scheduled a visit next week to two Pocatello sites being considered along with two in Boise as the location for a new state women's prison.

Karol Phillips, spokeswoman for the Idaho Department of Corrections, said board members want to make a decision on a site for the $10 million, 160-bed prison by the end of November.

They met Friday in Boise to hear a status report from Corrections Department and state Division of Public Works staff on the search for the best location to build a women's prison.

Corrections officials have said they hope to begin construction by next July, and that the facility is scheduled to be ready one year later.

Both Pocatello locations are on private land. One, a 103-acre site, is on the city's eastern boundary along Philbin Road. The other, 72 acres, is southeast of Pocatello.

Ms. Phillips said the owners of the Philbin Road property have asked $9,300 per acre for the land, while the asking price for the American Road land was $1,367 per acre.

Each of the 80-acre Boise sites, south of the city near Gowen Road and southwest of the city along Pleasant Valley Road, is on state endowment land. Ms. Phillips said if one of them is selected, the Board of Correction would have to negotiate with the state Department of Lands and the Idaho Land Board.

OSHA citations name Idaho company

SEATTLE — A Meridian, Idaho, company faces seven citations totaling $48,700 in proposed penalties from the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration for alleged job safety violations.

Notice of the violation by American Hydro Systems was issued by the Seattle regional office of the Department of Labor, which includes OSHA.

Ryan Kuchmichel, OSHA area director in Boise, said the citations were issued as a result of an employee complaint. The complaints alleged failure to correct problems identified in a previous investigation.

Arid Club now includes 2nd woman

BOISE — Elisabeth Zinser did something last week that University of Idaho presidents have done for years — she joined Boise's Arid Club.

But she is only the second woman to sign up with the posh club that earlier barred women from its ranks of Idaho's top political and business leaders.

"The president of the University of Idaho is a leadership position," Zinser said.

Fantastic 5 game sells over $1 million

BOISE — In just over two months, more than $1 million worth of tickets have been sold in the Idaho Lottery's Fantastic 5 game.

Lottery officials said Thursday the millionth ticket was sold at a Boise convenience store. The on-line Idaho game started Sept. 4 and has paid out $438,052 in prizes.

It offers a minimum grand prize of $32,500. If nobody gets all five numbers in one drawing, the grand prize carries over and is based on total ticket sales.

Volunteer groups attend burial of Baby Jessica

BOISE (AP) — Seven women gathered around a small grave at Boise's Cloverdale Cemetery to mourn the death of a stranger's child.

A migrant worker, the mother had to leave baby Jessica at a Boise hospital after the infant died of sudden infant death syndrome.

"She (the mother) needed to know there were people here who cared enough to be here, because we knew she couldn't be here," Gayla Whitlock, Boise, said.

Jessica Ramirez, a member of a migrant family passing through Boise, was one day short of three months old when she died of sudden infant death syndrome in October.

The baby's family, apparently on the road from Washington to California looking for work, had authorized the child's cremation and then left Boise.

Jerry Bostron will recap the previous year and the tentative 1991 race and ride season schedule will be open for review and input. Anyone interested is invited to attend the meeting.

Tie earns Japanese all-stars series win over major leaguers

TOKYO – Japan clinched its first-series victory over a major-league all-star team Friday night with a 6-6 tie that gave it a 4-1-1 lead in the eight-game goodwill matchup.

Although a Japanese all-star team beat the San Francisco Giants 6-3 in 1970, Japan never before had won a series between all-star teams. Major leaguers began making tours in 1951, winning a 15-game series 13 games to 2.

Major leaguers won the last series, in 1988, by a 3-2-2 margin.

Filer's Brandy Morrison launches a shot over Mary Henslee of Hagerman in the first quarter of the Wildcats' win.

Filer, Buhl advance to finals of Wildcat Tip-Off Classic

By Ron Gates
Times-News writer

FILER — Brandi Blakley's three-point goal with 1 minute, 33 seconds left to play Friday evening carried Filer to a 39-38 decision over Hagerman and into tonight's championship game of the Wildcat Tip-Off Classic.

The Cats will meet archrival Buhl, a 60-44 comeback victor over Oakley in Friday's opener, for the title at 8 p.m. In another familiar pairing, the Pirates and Hornets battle for the consolation championship starting at 6:15.

Blakley, whose desperation shot from near midcourt, staked Filer to it's most comfortable pad of the evening, 22-15 at intermission, was all alone in the right hand corner just after Julie Thompson scored in the paint to draw the Pirates even at 36.

"Really, what we were trying to do was just keep them spread so we could get the ball to Brandi," explained Filer coach Wade Quesnell. "In a tight situation we want her at the free throw line. Fortunately, she just had the confidence to put the ball up."

For Hagerman, which was paced by Tanja Eichelberger's 13 points, it was a matter of poor shooting. 11 of 46 through the first three periods. The Pirates found the range of five of 13 over the final eight minutes only to see Keri Andrus' shot draw iron at the buzzer.

"We did it in volleyball. Got the monkey off our backs in the first game," said Hagerman's Jerry Dichl after watching his charges slip to 1–1. "I guess the second game in basketball is okay. There are no excuses. We just got outplayed by a better team tonight."

Brandy Morrison finished with 12 points – six fewer than her senior teammate Blakley — scoring half of those in the fourth period. She twice took the Wildcats out of trouble from the floor, then fashioned a four-point lead from the foul stripe with 3:33 remaining.

"You've got to give her a lot of credit," added Quesnell. "I don't know how many rebounds Brandy got (11), but at 5–6 she more than held her own inside."

Oakley, the defending Magic Valley and District 4-A 4-girls basketball champions, led at all three breaks and built a 30–23 lead two minutes into the second half as junior Cara Cranney, whose 26 points led all scorers, erupted for six

Valley rolls on to state A-3 football title game

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — It was one of those situations for Valley Coach Rod Malone where you'd just about rather have the ball and the clock running than points.

With 7:17 left in the fourth quarter in this state Class A-3 football semifinal showdown with Sugar-Salem, he'd just seen the Diggers trim the Viking advantage to a very-reachable 14-8.

He took a time out to tell the troops: "Your destiny is in your own hands, you have to pick up the pace and knock off the stupid penalties."

The Viking offense, which hadn't been much in evidence since the mid-second quarter, then flashed some of its unbeaten form. The clock started rolling as Chuck Springer and Brian Hardy, with assists from Jesse Simpson, hammered the ball downfield and clinched a trip to the state finals next week on a touchdown with 54 seconds left.

It nailed down the win 21-8, as Pedro Fuente booted his third straight conversion, and pointed Malone toward a scouting trip this afternoon in Boise because his Vikings will be meeting the Fruitland-Homedale winner in the finals.

This Valley victory must be credited to the Viking defense, however, with a healthy assist from a couple of kind bounces in the closing two minutes.

Twice the defense held on fourth and inches inside the 15-yard line and a third time recovered a muffed center snap at the 12 to keep Sugar-Salem's zero on the board.

When the Diggers, who will resurface next fall in the Class A-2 division, hit their lone touchdown on a 37-yard pass to Troy Sakota, the offense ("on vacation the the whole second half," Malone said) took over.

But fortune smiled, then laughed out loud when it allowed the Vikings to twice rescure possession after bobbles inside the 10-yard line and there were a couple of other blessings.

First, Springer turned a busted play that almost resulted in a drop of the handoff, into a six-yard gain and Sugar added a face mask penalty. At the seven, Hardy was hit and fumbled but was knocked down on the ball. Then Springer took a rollout into the end zone after bouncing off a knot of players.

"A little luck doesn't hurt," celebrated Coach Ron Kline after the touchdown was safely declared.

The Vikings blasted the length of the field on their second possession and seemed to assert total control when Hardy scored from the 24. The Valley defense had the Sugar-Salem total offense in the deficit column by then.

The first fourth and inches stand came three plays into the second quarter and the offense immediately uncorked another grinding drive of 68 yards, capping it on a one-yard dive by Hardy after a Springer to Ryon Jarvis extricated the Vikings from a third and goal situation at the 19 the play before.

But the Vikings then fumbled away a third golden chance at the Digger eight-yard line with 40 seconds left in the half

Ricks takes home court from CSI at Region 18 tournament

By Mike Mallet
Sports editor

TWIN FALLS – For as easily as Ricks College won Friday night, the Region 18 Tournament officials might already have sent their trophy to the jewelers for engraving.

The Trojans handled host College of Southern Idaho 11-15, 15-5, 15-9, 15-10 to take the dominant position in the tournament.

CSI wrestles Utah Valley Community College at 9 a.m. today for the right to meet Ricks in the championship match at 1 p.m. The CSI-UVCC survivor will need to beat Ricks twice to gain the title and a trip to nationals in Miami. The Trojans did exactly that to take last year's Region 18 title.

"We had a great crowd pulling for us," said CSI Coach Ben Stroud. "The kids didn't want to play hard, and Ricks is tough. We have to play the best if we're going to beat them. We can't let down at any time."

Ricks, now 47–5, outplayed the Golden Eagles for most of the match. After winning the first game, CSI, 47–14, led only twice for the remainder.

"I thought it was critical to take out the home court advantage tonight," said Ricks Coach JoAnn Reeve. "I'm really proud of how everyone played. As a team they were solid."

The Trojans pounded on CSI in Game 2, taking an 11–3 lead. Two kills and a block by Deborah Nield slowed Ricks' momentum and earned a couple points for the Eagles, but could not turn around the game. Chantelle Sharp and Tawnya Tingey had service runs of four-and-five points respectively to do most of the damage for Ricks.

Jackie Dunn's kill completed a string of four points by CSI setter Jena Griffin for a 7–3 Eagles' lead in the third game. But three kills by Sharp combined with CSI misplays led to a 10–1 run by the Trojans.

Sharp strung together five points in the final game to erase a 5–4 edge for the Eagles. Freshman Heather Kendall came off the bench to spark a CSI rally with back-to-back kills off short sets to the middle from Griffin. The Eagles closed to 9–8 before Ricks pulled away to 11–8. A pair of blocks for points by Shannon Cato helped CSI stay alive before Diana Berret's dink ended the contest.

"We just couldn't sustain," Stroud said. "We played hard the first game. We gave them the second game. We give them the third game. Then we decided to play in the fourth game."

The Eagles trailed 6-4 in the first game but pulled ahead 8–6 after three points by Tammie Clark, Vikki Allred's three kills and two dinks and Nield's four-straight service points helped CSI hold off a Trojan comeback and put the Eagles in the driver's seat early.

"We're in a tough spot," Stroud said. "We've lost. UV has won. We have to forget about this match, try to play hard from that first match all the way through to the championship."

Utah Valley earned the right to meet CSI today by eliminating Snow College 15-1, 15–6, 16–14. CSI opened the day's play with a 15–11, 15–7, 15–6 win over Snow. Ricks then sent UVCC into the loser's bracket 15–10, 6–15, 15–7, 15–4.

Tennessee gets personality test from Notre Dame today

The Associated Press

Tennessee's football team is going to get a Rorschach test Saturday. Well, sort of.

"I don't know what the personality of this team is yet, and I'm ready to find out ... coach Johnny Majors said.

The Volunteers, however, won't be looking at a series of inkblot designs, which is how the Rorschach method analyzes personality. They'll be looking at offensive and defensive formations and gimmicks designed by Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz's staff, and they'll be trying to ignore the Fighting Irish mystique.

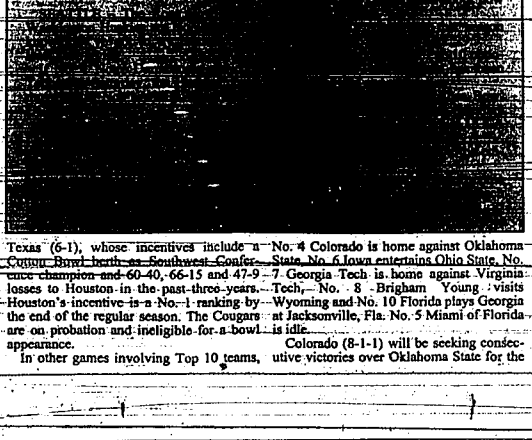

"We can't make any mistakes Saturday," said Majors, whose ninth-ranked Vols have won five times, but were upset by Alabama and had to settle for ties in big games against Colorado and Auburn.

"It's an exciting challenge. We're looking forward to it. I just hope we can meet it."

A defeat would knock Notre Dame, which has been struggling defensively all season, out of the No. 1 ranking for the second time this year. The Irish are 7-1.

Hoping the Volunteers develop the personality of big-game winners will be the second-ranked Washington Huskies, who are poised to take over the top spot. The Huskies, 8-1 and already set as the Pac-10 representative in the Rose Bowl, will be at home Saturday against struggling UCLA.

The third-ranked Houston Cougars, who are 8-0 and the only unbeaten, untied major college team, will play at 14th-ranked

Texas (6-1), whose incentives include a Cotton Bowl berth as Southwest Conference champion and 60-40, 66-15 and 47-9 losses to Houston in the past three years. Houston's incentive is a No. 1 ranking by the end of the regular season. The Cougars are on probation and ineligible for a bowl appearance.

In other games involving Top 10 teams, No. 4 Colorado is home against Oklahoma State, No. 6 Iowa entertains Ohio State, No. 7 Georgia Tech is home against Virginia Tech, No. 8 Brigham Young visits Wyoming and No. 10 Florida plays Georgia at Jacksonville, Fla. No. 5 Miami of Florida is idle.

Colorado (8-1-1) will be seeking consecutive victories over Oklahoma State for the first time since the mid-1970s.

Iowa (7-1) will be trying to go 6-0 for the first time ever in the Big Ten, against an Ohio State squad, which Iowa coach Hayden Fry picked to win the conference championship.

Georgia Tech (7-0-1) hopes to have an easier time against Virginia Tech than it had in knocking Virginia from the top spot with a 41-38 win last Saturday.

Brigham Young (7-1) and Wyoming, 9-1 after being upset last Saturday by Colorado State, will play before the first sellout crowd in the 40-year history of Laramie's 33,500-seat War Memorial Stadium. For the day, the stadium will be Wyoming's third largest population center, behind the cities of Cheyenne and Casper.

Florida is a heavy favorite against Georgia, but Gators coach Steve Spurrier is well aware that Georgia has won 14 of the 18 games between the teams.

In another battle between ranked teams, No. 17 Illinois (6-2-0) will try to rebound from a trouncing by Iowa, against No. 19 Michigan (5-3).

Other games involving ranked teams will have No. 11 Virginia at North Carolina, No. 12 Florida State at home against Cincinnati, No. 13 Nebraska at Kansas, No. 15 Auburn at home against Southern Mississippi, No. 20 Oregon at California, No. 21 Penn State entertaining Maryland, No. 22 Louisville at home against Boston College and No. 24 Michigan State at Minnesota. No. 16 Mississippi and No. 18 Clemson do not play.

Jordan's 41 points lead Bulls over Celtics

Pro basketball

BOSTON (AP) — Michael Jordan scored 41 points, including 14 in a decisive third period, and the Chicago Bulls handed the Boston Celtics their first defeat, 120-100 on Friday night.

The Bulls, beaten at home by the Celtics on Tuesday night, built a commanding lead in the third quarter and went on to just their third victory in their last 15 regular-season appearances at Boston Garden.

The Celtics, who won their first three games under new coach Chris Ford, last led 63-62 at the start of the second half. But Jordan drove in for a dunk and added 10 more points in a 19-7 run.

Timberwolves 106, Hornets 77

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tony Campbell scored 26 points, and Minnesota held Charlotte to 27 points in the first half as the Timberwolves won by the greatest margin in their short history.

Tyrone Corbin added 20 points and 13 rebounds for Minnesota, which beat Seattle 110-82 last season. Pooh Richardson had 18 points and 13 assists for the Timberwolves, who snapped a three-game losing streak and surpassed the 100-point mark for the first time this season.

Bucks 108, Bullets 100

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) – Rickey Pierce scored 14 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter as Milwaukee stretched its winning streak to four games by beating Washington.

Bernard King, who had 34 points, pulled Washington within one on a layup with 3:20 remaining. But Pierce scored seven straight points, putting the Bucks in front 101-93 with 2:19 to play.

Mavericks 111, Magic 99

DALLAS (AP) – Rolando Blackman scored 25 of his 34 points in the second half in the absence of Roy Tarpley and Fat Lever, carrying Dallas to its fourth straight victory while keeping Orlando winless.

Tarpley, the Mavericks' leading scorer and rebounder, injured his right kneecap with 18 seconds left in the first quarter. He is questionable for Tuesday night's game at Orlando. Lever was not in uniform because of swelling on his right knee, and the club announced he will undergo arthroscopic surgery next week.

Pacers 122, Cavaliers 107

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) – Four 3-pointers by Chuck Person and three by Reggie Miller lifted Indiana over Cleveland.

Miller scored 13 of his 28 points in the final quarter when Indiana pulled away after taking an 87-77 lead into the period. A 3-pointer by Miller gave the Pacers their largest lead, 122-102 with 41 seconds remaining.

SuperSonics 135, Nuggets 129

DENVER (AP) – Xavier McDaniel scored 27 points and Dana Barros 21 as unbeaten Seattle defeated winless Denver.

The Nuggets (0-5), averaging 139 points and giving up 152, toned down their record-breaking offensive style, but it made little difference to the SuperSonics (3-0), who hit 51.4 percent to Denver's 43.3.

Trail Blazers 113, Pistons 101

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Terry Porter had 29 points and 10 assists and Kevin Duckworth scored 27 points to lead unbeaten Portland over Detroit in a rematch of last season's NBA finalists.

Portland (4-0) handed Detroit its 21st straight loss at Memorial Coliseum. The Trail Blazers shot 57 percent to just 44 by the Pistons, who got 30 points from Mark Aguirre.

Lakers 100, Kings 86

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) – Magic Johnson scored 25 points as Los Angeles won its first game while extending its homecourt winning streak against Sacramento to 42 games.

James Worthy added 18 points for the Lakers, who avoided their first season-opening three-game losing streak since 1978.

Bobby Hansen scored 18 points for the Kings, who have lost 10 in a row to the Lakers and 25 of 27 since moving from Kansas City to Sacramento.

Warriors 143, Hawks 128

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Chris Mullin scored 40 points as Golden State handed Atlanta its first loss.

Mitch Richmond added 29 points and Tim Hardaway 28 for the Warriors.

Jerome's zone press irons out Kimberly

Girls' basketball

The Times-News

JEROME – The Jerome Tigers turned to a zone press in the second quarter to befuddle Kimberly's ball handling and claimed a 49-33 nonconference victory Saturday night.

Kimberly was within a point at the end of the first quarter when Jerome made the switch and jumped into a 24-13 halftime lead. The Bulldogs managed just two free throws during the second period.

Jerome won the preliminary 51-43.

GOODING — A second-quarter press hurt the young Gooding Senators and pointed the Shoshone Indians to a 69-39 nonconference victory Friday night.

The Senators, with five sophomores on their team, battled to a 13-13 draw in the first quarter. But when the Indians turned on the pressure, they quickly marched to a 35-19 halftime lead.

"They were in the press earlier and we seemed to be handling it," said Coach Jay Durfee, "and then we had real breakdown."

Shoshone took the first game 40-13.

DECLO- Thias Kidd scored a game-high 18 points to lead the Declo Hornets to a 51-36 nonconference win over the Raft River Trojans.

The Hornets jumped out quickly in the first quarter building an 18-6 lead and never looked back.

Gina Miller chipped in seven points as eight Hornets players got into the scoring column.

The Trojans were paced by Amy Briggs, who scored 11 points, and Kim Whitaker who added 10.

In JV action the Hornets claimed a 40-28 win.

NFL boss throws penalty flag at Arizona

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) – NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue says it would be hypocritical of the league to expect the players to be role models but ignore a snub to a man who is a hero to many of them.

Tagliabue has recommended that the 1993 Super Bowl be played somewhere besides Arizona because voters there on Tuesday rejected a statewide holiday in memory of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

In the NFL, 60 percent of the players are black.

"Many of our players regard Martin Luther King as a role model," Tagliabue said Friday during a visit to the University of Tennessee. "We're encouraging them to be role models, and I think it would be unfair to ask them to go play their championship game in that state in these circumstances. It's a charged environment and a charged issue."

Card store owner sues kid over $1,200 Ryan card sold for $12

Knight-Ridder News Service

CHICAGO – Nolan Ryan has put up some amazing numbers on the pitching mound, but none is as intriguing as the one that will be debated next month in a Du Page County (Ill.) courtroom.

At that time, an Addison, Ill., 12-year-old will find out if the $12 he paid for a 1968 Ryan baseball card was amazing or if he should have paid $1,200.

Joe Irmen of Ball-Mart, a baseball card store in Addison, is suing Brian Wrzesinski, who bought the card in Irmen's shop last April. Irmen contends the card – in near-perfect condition – was priced at $1,200, not $12.

He says a clerk, who since quit, had no knowledge of baseball cards when she sold the item to Wrzesinski. On Dec. 27, Judge Ann Jorgenson of the 18th Judicial Circuit Court of Du Page Court in Wheaton will hear the case.

"It happened on my second or third day in (baseball card) business," said Irmen. "I had about 20 people in the store and I needed help. I got the girl next door (from Irmen's jewelry store) to help me. I was there when the whole thing happened, but I was busy.

"The price of the card said $1,200. The kid (Wrzesinski) looked at it and said to the girl, 'Is this worth $12?' She said yes and he bought it.

"What the kid did is like stealing. He knew what he was doing and the girl didn't. He should have told her the card was worth more than $12. She didn't know if it was 12 cents, $12 or $1,200. She just took the kid's word for it."

straight points.

But with a trio of starters in foul trouble, the Hornets — 0-2 on the season — yielded the first 14 points of the fourth quarter and never seriously challenged thereafter.

Melissa Evans, a 5-10 junior center who ended the evening with 13 points, paced the Buhl breakaway with three turnaround baskets and Karen Eckert, the Indians' other double figure scorer added a pair.

"I felt real good about then," smiled a relieved Joe Shepard, coach of the Indians. "I think we kind of settled down when they went into a zone — they had two girls in foul trouble — that was one of the keys."

"We got in foul trouble in the first quarter," countered Oakley coach Don Tompkins. "We made of lot of young mistakes. After we lost (junior guard) Anne Hale we went to pieces."

Rachelle Hardy, the lone senior on the Oakley roster, ended the outburst with a layup at the midway point, then preceded a Cranney bucket with two free throws to pull her team within seven. A 10-4 tear by mostly Buhl reserves accounted for the final count.

and the offense was lackluster after that until the final seven minutes.

"We were bigger but they came out and stuck us better probably than anyone this season," Malone said. "I don't know if they were the best team we've played but they were the most physical."

Malone said the difference in the game was "we were able to make the plays on some critical downs and were able to hold them a couple of times."

He noted the other upsetting part of the game were the 10 penalties for 92 yards.

Valley dominated the first half badly, running 39 plays to 18 for Sugar-Salem and hold 222 yard in total offense to the Diggers' 80.

In the second half Sugars-Salem had 100 yards on 21 plays against 122 in 30 for the Vikings.

Huskies

Terry Donahue said. "We've got to be able to bounce back to even be able to stay with Washington."

The Washington and UCLA programs are going in different directions. During the 1980s, the Bruins, under Donahue, went to eight bowl games, including three Rose Bowls. Only two years ago, the Huskies missed going to a bowl with a 6-5 record.

"There are cycles in everything," James said. "But they'll be back in a hurry."

Donahue, who watched the Bruins stagger to a 3-7-1 record last season, isn't making any claims.

"I think that all football programs go through a little cycle," he said. "But our dip has been much greater than I would have ever forecast. I never envisioned this."

Washington and UCLA are 7-7-1 in the past 15 years, with six of the last seven games decided by seven or fewer points. The Huskies won 28-27 at Pasadena, Calif., last season on Greg Lewis' 10-yard touchdown run with 1:02 left.

Donahue thinks the Bruins will be facing the best Washington team he's seen.

"They've got outstanding speed and they've got outstanding offensive and defensive lines," he said. "Usually, you might have one line that is dominant but not the other. When you have that, you have a great team.

"This is a great Washington team. It's got all the ingredients."

Despite James' disclaimer about watching the scoreboard for the Notre Dame score Saturday, Washington is hopeful of winning its first national championship. The Huskies were 11-1 in 1984 and finished second to Brigham Young for the national title.

"I think the only disappointment that would come now is if we didn't play well this week or next week," James said. "There's one goal (the Rose Bowl) they still can't take away from us."

Washington leads the nation in rushing defense, yielding only 65.7 yards per game. The Huskies lead the Pac-10 in total defense with an average of 278.1 yards per game and total offense at 422.3. Washington also is tops in the Pac-10 in scoring offense with 35.2 points per game and scoring defense (12.8).

Washington leads the nation in turnover-takeaway ratio with a plus 17. The Huskies have intercepted 16 passes and recovered 12 fumbles, while losing five fumbles and being intercepted six times.

Lewis, a senior, leads the Pac-10 in rushing with an average of 136.6 yards per game. He's rushed for 100 yards in every game this season.

UCLA redshirt freshman quarterback Tommy Maddox is the best in the conference in total offense with 237.3 yards per game and ranks fourth in the league in passing with 226.0 yards per game.

Not all Mets will miss Strawberry

NEW YORK (AP) – Tim Teufel won't miss Darryl Strawberry being in New York. Neither will Doug Drabek. And while Eric Davis likes his best friend's move to Los Angeles, George Steinbrenner says the Mets should not have let him get away.

"I don't blame the Mets at all for taking a stand," Teufel, a reserve infielder, said. "The last two weeks of the season, the way Strawberry handled himself and didn't want to play in a pennant race ... you're going to give a guy $20 million who wouldn't go out there in those games?"

Strawberry missed several games near the end of the season with a bad back. With him out of action, the Mets fell out of contention in the National League East. Teufel said many of Strawberry's teammates questioned whether his injury was that serious.

"Everybody associated with the Mets in the last two weeks of the season did," Teufel said. "There are steps you take if you've got an injury like that and Darryl did not take those steps."

"Obviously, he was not going to jeopardize anything going into the off-season as a free agent. He wanted to be healthy. He was thinking totally of himself, not the team. We still had a chance to win and Darryl just wouldn't play. He said, 'Enough is enough.'"

Strawberry signed a five-year, $20.25 million contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers on Thursday. He was born and raised in Los Angeles and lives there in the off-season, and wanted to go home to play.

"His leaving might be beneficial to us," Teufel said. "I'm not burying him, but he had me fooled. He talked all year about how he wanted to leave New York as a winner, how nice it would be to win a world championship.

"But obviously it didn't mean as much to Daryl as he said. He knew what he wanted personally, and that was more important. The hard part to swallow is that with him, I still think we could have won the division."

With Strawberry in the lineup, the Mets surged in early September and even managed to briefly pass Pittsburgh. Later in the month, Strawberry hit one of the biggest home runs of the season for the Mets, a shot off Drabek, the Pirates ace.

"They lose a guy who is always a threat to hit the long ball and get them instant runs," Drabek said. "He's definitely hurt me over the last four years. You didn't want him to come up in certain situations. We had a couple of guys like that on our team this year in Barry (Bonds) and Bobby (Bonilla).

"Every good team has somebody like him," Drabek said, "but Strawberry has been doing it year after year."

Former Met teammates questioned Darryl Stawberry's desire during 1990's pennant race.

For years, Steinbrenner drew the top free agents to New York: Reggie Jackson, Catfish Hunter, Goose Gossage and, more recently, Steve Sax, were among the good players brought to The Bronx.

Now, under an agreement with Commissioner Fay Vincent – which Steinbrenner's attorneys are challenging – Steinbrenner cannot get involved in free-agent negotiations. But he can still talk, and he had no doubt about how he would've handled the Strawberry situation.

"Strawberry's an impact player. I wouldn't have let him get away," Steinbrenner said. "You have to look at my past record. I would have continued to be active in the free-agent market. I always have been."

Strawberry, however, had talked for several years about playing for his hometown team. He said before the 1988 playoffs between the Mets and Dodgers that he would like to play in Los Angeles – especially if he could be teamed with Davis, the Cincinnati Reds star.

Viking indicted on drug charges

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) – Minnesota Vikings placekicker Donald Igwebuike was indicted in Tampa, Fla., Friday on charges that he and two other men conspired to smuggle an estimated $1 million worth of heroin from his native Nigeria.

Igwebuike, accompanied by attorney Larry Reed, surrendered at the U.S. Customs office in Minneapolis. Afterward, he was led away in handcuffs for an appearance before U.S. Magistrate Frank L. Noel in St. Paul.

He was charged with smuggling conspiracy, conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute and importation of heroin. If convicted, he could face up to 120 years in prison and $6 million in fines.

Igwebuike was released after posting 10 percent of the $50,000 bond ordered by Noel, who also requested the player's passport. He is now scheduled for a federal court appearance Wednesday in Tampa.

In a one-sentence statement, the Vikings said they have excused Igwebuike "for a sufficient period of time to allow him to handle personal matters."

In New York, NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said the team had notified the league that Igwebuike "has been given a leave of absence to deal with his personal situation. The league believes this is an appropriate action under the circumstances. We have no further comment at this time."

In Tampa, U.S. Attorney Robert Genzman refused comment on specifics of Igwebuike's alleged involvement, but said the case involved 296 grams of heroin that was 85 percent pure and worth as much as $1 million on the streets.

Asked about the indictment as he ducked into his attorney's car in St. Paul, Igwebuike said, "Yeah, I'm surprised."

Reed said his client was holding up as "best as can be expected."

The Vikings said the NFL granted them a roster exemption for Igwebuike, meaning he won't be eligible to play against Detroit on Sunday. His roster spot was given to rookie safety Pat Eilers. Fuad Reveiz, the former Miami and San Diego kicker whom the Vikings signed last week, will be the Vikings' kicker Sunday.

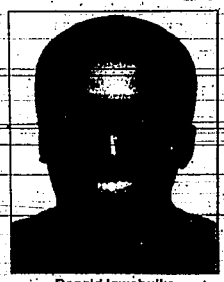

All but a few Vikings players declined comment on the indictment as they left practice in Eden Prairie.

"We got a game to play," receiver Leo Lewis said. He said coach Jerry Burns informed the team of the indictment on the practice field.

"This is a matter out of the team's hands," guard Dave Huffman said. "We'll just have to follow along with Iggy and see what happens."

"He's innocent until proven guilty," quarterback Rich Gannon said.

Igwebuike's name was linked to the case last month when ABC News reported that prosecutors in Tampa had "irrefutable" evidence connecting the kicker to an attempt to bring heroin into this country from Nigeria.

Donald Igwebuike
Could face up to 120 years

Federal investigators reportedly have tape recordings of telephone conversations in which Igwebuike was believed to have discussed the importation of drugs.

Igwebuike, who spent five years with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers before being released in September, was charged on three counts of a four-count indictment that superseded one returned last month against Maduwuba Ibekwe and Ibezim Ofedu, who already were in custody and charged in the case.

Ibekwe, a taxi driver and substitute teacher in Hillsborough County, Fla., was arrested Oct. 12 at Orlando International Airport, where a personal search by a U.S. Customs Service inspector allegedly resulted in the discovery of three pellets containing heroin.

The pellets, about the size of a man's thumb and wrapped in black electrical tape, were found covered with feces and wrapped in a paper towel in Ibekwe's pants, according to an arrest affidavit.

Ibekwe, who allegedly swallowed the heroin before boarding his flight to Orlando, was released from a hospital three days later after he passed more packets of the drug. He was charged with importation of heroin, pleaded innocent and is being held without bond at the Hillsborough County Jail.

Ofedu, also denied bond, is charged with conspiracy to import heroin and possession with intent to distribute. Court records said he accepted about 400 grams of heroin from an undercover customs agent, and told agents after his arrest that he planned to distribute the drug in New York City.

Reed said Igwebuike is a victim of circumstantial evidence, which reportedly includes a plane ticket the player bought for Ibekwe and taped telephone conversations between the men.

Reed said Igwebuike wanted Ibekwe to rush $12,000 to his parents in Anambra, Nigeria. Reed said the kicker's parents received the money.

Dodgers' move likely to start free agent signing spree

The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Dodgers' signing of Darryl Strawberry could start a rush of free-agent signings before the end of the month.

The New York Mets wasted no time in trying to regroup and have set up a meeting with free agent Vince Coleman on Tuesday according to a source close to the speedy outfielder. New York says they have contacted Coleman but deny a meeting has been scheduled for later in the week.

The Mets' main competition for Coleman will come from the Philadelphia Phillies.

If the Dodgers had not signed Strawberry, they were going to talk to the Philadelphia Phillies about right fielder Von Hayes. The Mets may now go after Hayes by offering the Phillies a starting pitcher.

Meanwhile, Bud Black, a 33-year-old left-hander with an 83-82 career record, agreed Friday to a $10 million, four-year contract with the San Francisco Giants.

Black was 11-10 with a 3.53 ERA in 29 games with the Cleveland Indians before he was traded to Toronto on Sept. 17 for right-hander Mauro Gozzo and two minor leaguers. Black was 2-1 for the Blue Jays with a 4.02 ERA and then became a free agent.

"We felt that left-handed pitching was an area we wanted to strengthen this offseason, and with the acquisition of Bud Black, we think we have done just that," Giants general manager Al Rosen said. "He has excellent control, a good slider and a good change-up, and he knows how to use all his pitches."

The amount paid to Black should make left-handers Zane Smith, Tom Browning and Ted Higuera very happy. The Pirates offered Smith just over $6 million for 3 years.

Free Agent Update ...

George Bell: Now that Strawberry is in Dodger Blue, Bell is the best power hitter available. The Chicago Cubs have some interest in the left fielder. An outfield of Bell, Jerome Walton in center and Andre Dawson in right would match the power of the Pittsburgh outfield.

Bill Doran: The Dodgers aren't finished. They are after Doran in the event second baseman Juan Samuel leaves. LA may also go after San Francisco center fielder Brett Butler if he is declared a new look free agent.

Bob Welch: Detroit, desperate for pitching help, would like to bring the 27-game winner back to Michigan. But don't expect Welch to win 20 games for the Tigers. If he does leave, the A's will go strong after Mike Boddicker. In Oakland, Boddicker could win 20.

Ted Higuera: George Steinbrenner has been denied his request to get involved with free agents, so Yankees GM Gene Michael will have to convince Higuera to come to New York.

Terry Pendleton: The Yankees and Cubs each need a third baseman and Pendleton is the best available among the free agents.

Danny Jackson: Because of shoulder problems and a line drive off the bat of Montreal's Junior Noboa that hit him on the left forearm April 29, Jackson spent three stints totaling 54 days on the disabled list in 1990. The left-hander was 6-6 in 1990 after a 12-17 record in 1989 and 23-8 in 1988 with the Reds. "Danny has had some injuries, but all the general managers I talk with say that with his competitiveness and talent, the risks are no greater with him than with anyone else," said Jackson's agent, Ron Shapiro.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, coming off their first division championship season in 11 years, could lose as many as 10 free agents, including Don Slaught, Sid Bream, Ted Power, Wally Backman, R.J. Reynolds, Gary Redus and Zane Smith. The Pirates want Smith back the most.

Peete still steers golf's straightest drives

The Associated Press

Greg Norman led the PGA Tour in adjusted scoring average for the second consecutive season and Paul Azinger won the all-around category, also for the second year in a row.

Now if they can keep their streaks going for just eight more years through the 1998 season – they'll catch up with Calvin Peete.

Peete led the Tour in driving accuracy in 1990 for the 10th consecutive season, hitting ,837 percent of the fairways.

Other winners in the various Tour statistical categories were Norman in par-breakers (.219), Azinger in eagles (14) and sand saves (.672), Doug Tewell for greens in regulation (.709), Tom Purtzer in driving distance (279.6 yards), Mike Donald in birdies (401) and Larry Rinker in putting, 1.746 putts on greens reached in regulation.

North Carolina freshmen rated among best ever

The Associated Press

One thing that can bring a smile to even the dourest college basketball coach's face is the signing of a top-flight recruit.

Alumni give you a slap on the back and quickly forget any poor showings from last season. Rival coaches even offer that knowing nod of congratulations.

For North Carolina's Dean Smith, the winningest active coach with 686 victories, there was a lot more than signing one blue-chipper. Try five. One at each position, all considered among the top high school players in the nation.

It's certainly not the first time a group of talented players have all registered at the same school at the same.

It's not even the first time for Smith, who had five players come in as the Class of '69 – Rusty Clark, Bill Bunting, Dick Grubar, Gerald Tuttle and Joe Brown – and they reached the Final Four in each of their three years of eligibility. Those three teams are still the only ones to win the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season and tournament titles three consecutive years.

"Going to the Final Four was a lot tougher then because you had to win your conference tournament to get there," Smith said. "That class had a great player on either side of it in Larry Miller and Charles Scott, but they were a great nucleus of role players. Larry Brown was their freshmen coach and that was one of the few teams where we had someone at each position. There was chemistry, when they came to the varsity and they let it go around Miller."

There has been a lot of attention directed at this lastest crew to walk on to the Chapel Hill campus – 7-foot Eric Montross, 6-9 Clifford Rozier, 6-7 Pat Sullivan, 6-6 Brain Reese and 6-3 Derrick Phelps.

"People write on freshmen. What's the difference between the 14th-best freshman and the 16th-best according to some newspaper writer? They might get lucky and hit on one or two," Smith said. "Go give me your list from four years ago and put the same people in those slots. How'd they do in those four years? Of course I know or I wouldn't have brought it up.

"I can handle it ... but I don't think it's fair to the freshmen. I assume our expectations are because of freshmen, and that's really not smart."

The Tar Heels have been tabbed as the preseason favorite in the Atlantic Coast Conference by both the coaches and media and the five freshmen are a main reason.

You can't find out how the freshmen feel about their rookie season because first-year Tar Heels don't talk to the media until the first game and Smith doesn't talk specifics about them until then. Start asking questions on Nov. 24 when San Diego State visits Smith Center.

The veterans have let their feelings be heard on the newest players to wear Carolina Blue.

"I think that the freshmen really need to learn a lot about playing basketball the way Carolina plays," senior guard King Rice said. "All of them are going to be great players, no doubt about that. But we realize as seniors that we're the backbone of the team, and when it comes down to it, we're going to be on the floor, and hopefully, they'll learn from us and they'll be ready to contribute."

Senior forward Rick Fox echoed those feelings.

"I know they're a great class and they have great potential and I know they play hard," he said. "Now, what I want to know is how they're going to react to Coach Smith. Our team is not going to take a step to start from the basics for them. They've got to catch up to us."

UNLV coach leads peers in college winning percentage

NASHVILLE, TENN. (AP) – On the heels of UNLV's 1990 national championship, Jerry Tarkanian is college basketball's winningest coach for the sixth year in a row.

In Tarkanian's 22 years as head coach at Long Beach State and UNLV, his teams have won 565 games and lost 119 for a winning percentage of .826. His percentage was .823 at the start of last season and .813 when he first appeared at the head of the Top Twenty Coaches for the 1985-86 season.

According to the 24th edition of "Top Twenty Basketball Coaches," Dean Smith of North Carolina has the most victories – 688 – for the fourth year in a row but remains third in winning percentage behind Tarkanian and John Chaney of Temple. The top five are the same as a year ago – Tarkanian, Chaney, Smith, John Thompson of Georgetown and Denny Crum of Louisville.

The Top Twenty Coaches was originated by Elmore "Scoop" Hudgins, former public relations director of the Southeastern Conference and currently a sports consultant in Nashville. Hudgins takes the 20-active Division I coaches who have won the most games at four-year colleges – with at least five years in Division I – and ranks them by winning percentage.

A coach must have a winning record to make the list. This year, the minimum number of victories is Carril's 408. Last year, the cutoff was 397.

Chaney's record in 18 years as a head coach is 417-120-.777, followed by Smith at 688-203-.772; Thompson, 423-142-.749, and Crum, 463-156-.748.

Rounding out the top 10 are Lou Carneseca of St. John's, 484-180-.7289; Indiana's Bob Knight, 532-198-.7288; Sutton, 430-164-.724; Texas-El Paso's Don Haskins, 563-243-.699, and James Madison's Lefty Driesell, 560-249-.692.

The second 10 consists of Illinois' Lou Henson, 556-257-.684; Hofstra's Butch van Breda Kolff, 430-211-.671; Missouri's Norm Stewart, 552-273-.669; Alabama-Birmingham's Gene Bartow, 536-279-.658; Georgia's Hugh Durham, 448-243-.648; Carril, 408-228-.642; Old Dominion's Tom Young, 510-310-.621; Northern Iowa's Eldon Miller, 469-292-.616; Stetson's Glenn Wilkes, 512-389-.568; and Northwestern's Bill Foster, 445-348-.561.

Falling interest rates, hopes for generous credit policy spur market rally

The Associated Press

NEW YORK – The stock market staged a broad rally Friday, inspired by falling interest rates and hopes for a more generous credit policy at the Federal Reserve.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 44.80 to 2,488.61, cutting its loss for the week to 2.23 points.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by more than 5 to 2 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 1,123 up, 453 down and 428 unchanged.

The Labor Department reported Friday morning that the producer price index of finished goods rose 1.1 percent in October, slightly exceeding advance estimates in the financial world.

But the so-called "core" rate of inflation – excluding food and energy prices – was unchanged from September.

That bolstered hopes that the Federal Reserve would find more leeway to relax its credit policy in the near future, promoting lower interest rates.

On Thursday the Treasury completed a three-day auction of a record $34.25 billion in bonds and notes to a warm reception. Analysts said that gave extra credence to talk of lower rates.

Reports show an utterly different recession

John Cunniff
Business mirror

NEW YORK — This may be a much different recession from those in the past, according to reports from around the country.

Past recessions often began when overly eager producers turned out more goods than the economy could absorb, leading to inventory buildups and then to slower production and layoffs in order to shrink those inventories.

This one, says Albert Sindlinger, an economic researcher, began with the consumer's pocketbook rather than production inventories.

People all over the country are telling him, "My expenses are rising." That, he said, is the universal complaint. "People are saying their medical costs, insurance costs, their taxes are too much."

At the same time, he said, their assets probably are falling in value. Some housing prices have shrunk. Stock values, too. "And as their assets decline and costs rise, their incomes aren't adequate," he said.

Atop these problems is the loss of jobs. Government figures show 380,000 jobs have been lost in manufacturing since January 1989. Initial claims for jobless insurance rose to 454,000 in the week ended Oct. 20, the highest level since the last recession. While costs rise, ability to pay falls.

The voting results confirm the taxpayers' predicament and their outrage, said Sindlinger, who has been analyzing consumer attitudes for half a century, the latest 30 years of that time in a formal, scientific manner.

Based in Wallingford, Pa., the staff of Sindlinger & Co. has detailed talks with more than 800 heads of households every week, 52 weeks a year, asking them probing questions relating to their financial condition.

Those results are then processed at the company's computer facility and analyzed by the octogenarian himself, and then sent by high-speed mail or facsimile to corporate, governmental and academic clients.

Looking at last week's results, he commented that "the economy keeps getting worse." By his calculations, there are 38 states in recession, and the rest are borderline. The recession is already in its 10th month, he says.

The Commerce Department disagrees. Its latest quarterly report, for the third quarter of the year, showed economic activity growing at an unexpectedly strong 1.8 percent annual rate.

Sindlinger scoffs at the estimate, and so do many academic and business economists. Some, such as Sindlinger, believe the figures are manipulated; some believe government methodology is faulty; some say almost certain revisions will lower the expansion rate.

Based on discussions with household heads, Sindlinger believes the latest tax increase enraged the American public. "Atop all their problems, it was the very thing they didn't need." And, he said, they perceive it as unjust.

Nation's retailers report dismal October sales

Sales of Top General Retailers

Nov. 8, 1990

Figures in billions of dollars; exact reporting periods as shown; percent change from the same period a year earlier.

Retailer	Sales	Change	Period
Sears, Roebuck and Co.	$2.55	↓ 1.2%	Four weeks to Nov. 3
K mart Corp.	$2.34	↑ 11.2%	Four weeks to Oct. 31
Wal-Mart Stores Inc.	$2.73	↑ 25%	Month of Oct.
J.C. Penney Co. Inc.	$1.31	↓ 4.9%	Four weeks to Nov. 3
Dayton Hudson Corp.	$1.13	↑ 16.7%	Four weeks to Nov. 3

Some top retailers do not report their sales on a monthly basis, including R.H. Macy & Co. Montgomery Ward & Co., a privately held retailer, has stopped releasing monthly sales. Reporting periods vary slightly and not all retailers have the same fiscal year.

AP

The Associated Press

The outlook for the Christmas shopping season went from bad to worse Thursday as the nation's biggest retailers reported dismal sales for October.

Several companies, including Sears, Roebuck and Co. and J.C. Penney Co. Inc., reported sales dropped from a year earlier as consumers with one eye on the economy and the other on the Middle East avoided buying non-essentials.

With Christmas less than seven weeks away, neither retailers nor industry analysts expect consumers to suddenly shift gears and go on mammoth gift-buying sprees.

The 1990 holiday season will be "a much more frugal Christmas," predicted Thomas Tashjian, an analyst with Seidler Amdec Securities Inc. in Los Angeles.

"They'll probaby be going in and buying the same number of items, but they're not going to pay as much," Tashjian said. "They're not going to buy $100 electronic toys for their kids, not this year."

Poor October sales, coming in the aftermath of disappointing showings in August and September, "reflected a recessionary psychology" among consumers, said Jeffrey Feiner, an analyst with Merrill Lynch & Co.

Consumers cut spending as the economy weakened and after the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait raised the specter of war, inflating prices of gasoline and home heating oil.

The first items crossed off shopping lists were so-called discretionary items — clothing, furniture and other extras that are the bread and butter of many big stores.

If retailers have a difficult Christmas, it could contribute to a further deterioration of the economy, since two-thirds of the nation's economic growth is generated by consumer spending.

Unsold goods on store shelves could also affect manufacturing. If stores don't place new orders, factories don't need to provide as many products and could lay off workers.

A poor Christmas season could be devastating for the retailers themselves. They depend on holiday shopping for about half their annual sales and profits. Christmas 1989 was a disappointment for many storeowners after they were forced to slash prices to attract customers.

Sears, the country's largest retailer, said results from stores open at least one year fell 0.4 percent last month from October 1989, while overall sales dropped 1.2 percent.

Analysts believe sales from stores open at least a year — also known as same-store or comparable store sales — provide a more accurate assessment of a retailer's performance than overall sales do. New stores tend to have extraordinarily strong sales that can skew a retailer's results.

One of the hardest hit companies last month was Penney, which said comparable store sales fell 6.3 percent from October 1989, while overall sales dropped 4.9 percent.

Limited Inc., the nation's largest specialty apparel retailer, reported comparable store sales dropped 1 percent as overall sales rose 13 percent. Apparel stores were also affected by continuing warm weather in some parts of the country.

ACTS 2:47.
"For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, if any man shall add unto these things God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book:
And if any man shall take away from the words of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book. Surely I come quickly."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE — BOBBY WOLFF

"Use it up, wear it out; Make it do, or do without."
— New England maxim

Most players recognize the need for a holdup play when they are declarers. Fewer see the need when they are on defense. Today's example covers one of the uses of a defensive holdup play.

West leads the heart nine, and East's 10 is won by South's ace. (South correctly refuses a holdup play, suspecting that the heart suit is blocked.) A spade is led to dummy's seven and East's ace. East returning the heart queen to dummy's king. Dummy's spade queen is led. South dropping his jack, and West is at the crossroads.

If he takes his spade king and continues the attack in hearts, South will prevail. East's heart jack wins, but West has no entry to his remaining hearts, and South escapes with nine tricks.

The winning move is for West to allow dummy's spade queen to hold (a defensive holdup play). When South continues with another spade, East jettisons the blocking heart jack, and South enjoys his three heart winners.

The holdup play is a useful tool. Although declarer has more opportunities to use it than does the defense, a good defender remains alert to possible advantages for his side.
